Integrating a Victim Perspective within Criminal Justice

International debates

Edited by ADAM CRAWFORD
and
JO GOODEY
Centre for Criminal Justice Studies
University of Leeds

Ashgate
DARTMOUTH
Aldershot • Burlington USA • Singapore • Sydney
Contents

Acknowledgements
Notes on Contributors
Series Preface

Introduction

Adam Crawford

1. An Overview of Key Themes
   Jo Goodey

Part I The Status of Victims

2. Victims as Consumers of the Criminal Justice System?
   Renée Zauberman

3. The Individualization of the Victim: From Positivism to Postmodernism
   Leslie Sebba

4. Taking the Law into their Own Hands: Victims as Offenders
   David Miers

5. Implications of the International Crime Victims Survey for a Victim Perspective
   Jan van Dijk

Part II Victims Within Criminal Justice

6. The New Status of Victims in the UK: Opportunities and Threats
   Helen Reeves and Kate Mulley

7. Victims and Criminal Justice: Creating Responsible Criminal Justice Agencies
   Joanna Shapland
8 Integrating a Victim Perspective in Criminal Justice Through Victim Impact Statements 165
   Edna Erez
9 Victims’ Rights, Defendants’ Rights and Criminal Procedure 185
   Andrew Ashworth

Part III Victims and Restorative Justice

10 The Practice of Family Group Conferences in New Zealand: Assessing the Place, Potential and Pitfalls of Restorative Justice 207
    Allison Morris and Gabrielle Maxwell
11 Integrating a Multi-Victim Perspective into Criminal Justice Through Restorative Justice Conferences 227
    Richard Young
12 Extending the Victim Perspective Towards a Systemic Restorative Justice Alternative 253
    Lode Walgrave
13 Salient Themes Towards a Victim Perspective and the Limitations of Restorative Justice: Some Concluding Comments 285
    Adam Crawford

Index 311