

The Contradictions of American Capital Punishment

Franklin E. Zimring

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

2003

Contents

Preface ix

Acknowledgments xi

I. Divergent Trends 1

1. The Peculiar Present of American Capital Punishment 3
2. More Than a Trend: Abolition in the Developed Nations 16
3. The Symbolic Transformation of American Capital Punishment 42

II. Explaining the American Difference 65

4. Federalism and Its Discontents 67
5. The Vigilante Tradition and Modern Executions 89
6. The Consequences of Contradictory Values 119

III. Capital Punishment in the American Future 141

7. The No-Win 1990s 143
8. The Beginning of the End 179

Appendix A: Statistical Materials on Lynchings and Executions	207
Appendix B: Reported Frequencies of National Death Penalty Policy, 1980 to 2001	213
Appendix C: Death Row and Execution Statistics	227
Appendix D: New Survey Analysis Materials	229
Appendix E: Justified Killings by Citizens and Police, by State	237
Appendix F: Review of Death Penalty Exoneration Data from the Death Penalty Information Center	241
References	243
Index	251