CONTENTS

Preface vii

1 History of Comparative Research in Jewish and Islamic Law 1
First Phase: The Birth of Islam—Second Phase: The Geonim; Changing Patterns of Influence—Methodological Problems in Comparative Research

2 Custom in the Geonic Period 16
General Remarks—Custom as Defined in Geonic Sources— Terminological Remarks (Custom and Halakhah; Custom and Tradition; Custom and Enactment; Custom and Consensus; Custom and “Act”; Custom and Stringency of the Law)—Custom as a Shaper of Norms—Textual Support for Custom—The Degree to which the Geonim Viewed Custom as a Formal Source of Law—Observance of Custom as Determined by Both Constraint and Rational Conviction (Center and Diaspora; Social Structure and Economic Change; Halakhic Literary Creativity; Political Change; Conclusion)—Consolidation and Enforcement of Custom under the Geonim (Custom as a Vehicle of Restraint; Custom as a Vehicle of Adjustment; Dissemination of Custom; Custom and Public Benefit; Enforcement of Customs; Borrowed Custom and Responsive Custom; Responsive Custom and Enactment; Legal Precedent versus Borrowed and Responsive Custom)

3 Custom in Islamic Law 68
The Status of Custom—Custom, nasṣ and ijmāʿ (consensus)—Custom as a Material Source: istihsān (Judicial or Personal Preference) versus qiṣṣā (Analogy)—Custom and Dispositive Law—The Changing Perception of Custom in Post-Classical Literature

4 Jewish-Muslim Contacts During the Geonic Period 80
Background—Evidence of Geonic Familiarity with Arab Custom and Islamic Law—Geonic Attitudes toward Islamic Law, the Muslims, and their Rule

5 Islamic Law as Background for Geonic Custom 92
Background and Extent—Recourse to Non-Jewish Courts: Implications for Geonic Custom (Non-Jewish Courts and Deeds Brought Before Them; Procedure in Jewish Courts; Anonymous Ban; Oath Pertaining to Landed Property; Seating of Witnesses; Litigants’ Obligation to Elucidate Their Pleas; Administration of Oaths to Women and Their Summoning to Court: Substantial Law)

6 Execution Procedure With Regard to Impoverished Debtors: The Oath of Destitution “I Have No Means” (yāmīn al-ʿadam) 113
Function, Formula and Scope in the Administration of Oaths—Emergence and Status of the Oath of Destitution—Ban and Imprisonment (Ban on Impoverished Debtors in Geonic
Literature; Imprisonment of Impoverished Debtors in Islamic Law; Ban versus Imprisonment—The Oath “I Have No Means” (Geonic Sources; Muslim Sources; Geonic versus Muslim Oaths)—Arrangement of Assets (Introduction; Geonim and Maimonides; Consideration of the Debtor’s Family; Sale or Rental of the Debtor’s Home; Muslim Practice; Arrangement of Assets in General; The Debtor’s Home and Property; The Debtor’s Wife and Children; Mulāzama: “Pursuit” of the Debtor; Geonim and Maimonides Compared with Islamic Practice)—Conclusion

7 Determination Of Incremental Amount Of A Lost Ketubbah
   Based On “Estimated Mohar” 157
Parallels Between Jewish and Islamic Law in Family Law—Estimated Mohar in Geonic Responsa—Muslim Source of the Practice (Estimated Mahr due to Husband’s Decease; “Kinswomen” and their Characteristics)—Kinswomen in Geonic and Islamic Law—Confirmation of Muslim Influence on Geonic Practice

Conclusion 175

Endnotes 183

Bibliography 327

Index 359