Crime and Empire
1840–1940
Criminal justice in local and global context

edited by

Barry S. Godfrey
Graeme Dunstall

WILLAN PUBLISHING
Contents

Foreword by Carolyn Strange vii
Notes on the editors and contributors ix
Acknowledgements xiv

1. Crime and empire: introduction
   Graeme Dunstall and Barry S. Godfrey
   1

2. The changes in policing and penal policy in nineteenth-century Europe
   Clive Emsley
   8

3. Explaining the history of punishment
   John Pratt
   25

4. Crimes of violence, crimes of empire?
   Mark Finnane
   43

5. Colonialism and the rule of law: the case of South Australia
   Julie Evans
   57
6 Colonial history and theories of the present: some reflections upon penal history and theory
Mark Brown

7 Crime, the legal archive and postcolonial histories
Catharine Coleborne

8 Traces and transmissions: techno-scientific symbolism in early twentieth-century policing
Dean Wilson

9 The English model? Policing in late nineteenth-century Tasmania
Stefan Petrow

10 The growth of crime and crime control in developing towns: Timaru and Crewe, 1850–1920
Barry S. Godfrey and Graeme Dunstall

11 (Re)presenting scandal: Charles Reade’s advocacy of professionalism within the English prison system
Sarah Anderson

12 ‘Saving our unfortunate sisters’? Establishing the first separate prison for women in New Zealand
Anna McKenzie

13 Maori police personnel and the rangatiratanga discourse
Richard S. Hill

14 ‘To make the precedent fit the crime’: British legal responses to sati in early nineteenth-century north India
Jane Buckingham

15 ‘Everyday life’ in Boer women’s testimonies of the concentration camps of the South African War, 1899–1902
Helen Dampier

16 Codification of the criminal law: the Australasian parliamentary experience
Jeremy Finn

Index