CALLING POWER TO ACCOUNT

Law, Reparations, and the Chinese Canadian Head Tax Case

Edited by
David Dyzenhaus and Mayo Moran

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO PRESS
Toronto Buffalo London
Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments xi
Contributors xiii

Context and History

DAVID DYZENHAUS AND MAYO MORAN

Litigating Injustice 20
AVVY GO

Legal Discrimination against the Chinese in Canada: The Historical Framework 24
CONSTANCE BACKHOUSE

Can We Do Wrong to Strangers? 60
AUDREY MACKLIN

The Head Tax Case and the Rule of Law: The Historical Thread of Judicial Resistance to 'Legalized' Discrimination 92
JOHN MCLAREN
Limits on Institutional Capacity to Address Injustice
The Limits of Constitutionalism: Requiring Moral Behaviour from Government  115
MARY EBERTS

Delivering the Goods and the Good: Repairing Moral Wrongs  147
CATHERINE LU

Rights and Wrongs, Institutions and Time: Species of Historic Injustice and Their Modes of Redress  165
JEREMY WEBBER

Redress for Unjust State Action: An Equitable Approach to the Public/Private Distinction  196
LORNE SOSSIN

Legal Theory and Gross Statutory Injustice
Gross Statutory Injustice and the Canadian Head Tax Case  233
JULIAN RIVERS

The Juristic Force of Injustice  256
DAVID DYZENHAUS

Private Right and Public Wrong
The Timing of Injustice  287
LIONEL SMITH

Mack v. Attorney General of Canada and the Structure of the Action in Unjust Enrichment  307
DENNIS KILMUCHUK

A Brief History of Mass Restitution Litigation in the United States  341
ANTHONY J. SEBOK
Time, Place, and Values: Mack and the Influence of the Charter on Private Law  378

MAYO MORAN

Appendix I: Appellants' Factum  413

Appendix II: Mack v. Attorney General of Canada – Judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal  450

Index  469