EVIDENCE BEFORE THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

ANNA RIDDELL AND BRENDAN PLANT
Contents

1. INTRODUCTION 1
   I. The Diversity of Approaches to Judicial Fact-Finding 1
   II. Fact-Finding in International Dispute Settlement 2
   III. the Subject of the Study: the International Court of Justice 4
   IV. The Aim of the Study 6
   V. Background to the Current Research 7
   VI. Personnel and Methodology 7
   VII. Structure of the Book 9

2. STRUCTURE AND ORGANIZATION OF THE COURT:
   IMPLICATIONS FOR THE COURT'S APPROACH TO EVIDENCE 11
   I. Functions and Features of the Court 12
      A. Rôle in the Legal Order of the United Nations 12
      B. Governing Documents: Constitution and (Self-)
         Regulation 14
         1. Formation of Chambers 15
   II. Parties and Participation; Cooperation and Control 16
      A. States Parties and Other Participants 16
         1. Intervention and submission of evidence by third party States 17
      B. Sovereign Equality and the Consent Criterion 20
      C. Cooperation Between the Court and the Parties 21
         1. Consultation with the President of the Court 22
         2. Procedural modifications 22
         3. The Registry 23
      D. A Shift in Approach? From Complaisance to Control 23
   III. Evolution of the Court's Evidentiary Practice 26
      A. Revision of the Rules 26
      B. Practice Directions 27
      C. Precedent 28
         1. Stare decisis and precedent 28
         2. Stare decisis and the ICJ 28
         3. Stare decisis in practice in the ICJ 30
         4. Stare decisis and evidence before the ICJ 31
      D. Separate and Dissenting Opinions 31
   IV. Composition and Culture of the Court 34
      A. Composition of the Court 34
         1. Professional background 35
         2. Legal traditions 36
         3. Inquisitorial v adversarial legal systems 37
Contents

1. International conventions 144
2. Customary international law 145
3. General principles of law recognised by civilised nations 147

VI. Conclusion 149

5. ADMISSIBILITY AND USE OF EVIDENCE 151

I. All Evidence is Generally Admissible 152
   A. Some Limitations of the Principle 153
      1. Evidence from negotiations 154
      2. Illegally obtained evidence 155
   B. Conclusion on Admissibility 158

II. Submission of Evidence 159
   A. Extracts 161
   B. Translations 163
   C. Certification 165
      1. Challenging authenticity 166
   D. Late Submission of ‘New’ Documents 171
      1. Prohibition on production of new documents—Article 56 of the Rules 171
      2. Procedure for requesting production of new documents 175
      3. Explaining necessity and delay 176
      4. Comments by the other party 177
         (a) Reservation of the right of response 177
         (b) Exhaustion of the right of response 178
      5. Timing and form of comments in response 179
      6. Extension of the principle: Submissions of documents after the oral hearings and during applications for review 179
      7. ‘Readily available’ documents 181
   E. Conclusion on the Submission of Evidence 184

III. Assessment of Evidence 185
   A. The Court’s General Principles of Evidentiary Assessment—The Nicaragua Case 187
      1. Weight given in cases of non-appearance 187
      2. Statements against a party’s interest 189
      3. Criticism of Nicaragua 189
   B. DRC v Uganda 190
   C. The Genocide Convention Case 191
   D. Summary of Principles of Assessment 192
   E. Weighing Witness Testimony 193
      1. Hearsay 195
   F. Expert Evidence 198

IV. Conclusion on Admissibility and Use of Evidence 201
Contents

6. NON-PRODUCTION, PRIVILEGE, AND NON-APPEARANCE 203
   I. Non-production Generally 204
   II. State Secrets and Privilege 206
      A. Municipal Rules Protecting Privileged Communication 206
      B. Privilege in International Litigation 207
      C. Privilege in the PCIJ Jurisprudence 208
      D. State Secrets in ICJ Litigation 210
         1. The Corfu Channel case—naval secrets 210
         2. The Genocide Convention case—‘redacted’ minutes of military meetings 212
            (a) Responses to the decision 215
      E. Difficulties and Prospects 217
   III. Non-appearance 219
      A. Purpose 219
      B. Consequences of Non-appearance for the Parties 220
      C. Application of Article 53 221
      D. Implications for the Court 222
         1. The duty of self-satisfaction 222
            (a) Questions of law 223
            (b) Questions of fact 224
         2. Irregular communications from the absent party 225
         3. Evaluation of evidence 227
      E. Concluding Remarks on Non-Appearance 228
   IV. Conclusion 229

7. DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE 231
   I. Introduction 231
      A. The Primacy of Documentary Evidence 232
   II. Characterization of Documentary Evidence 233
      A. No Definition 233
      B. The Variety of Documentary Forms of Evidence 234
   III. The Types of Documentary Evidence and the Issues Affecting their Use 235
      A. Treaties and International Agreements 235
      B. Documents from International Sources 236
         1. United Nations reports 237
         2. Official working documents of the UN 240
         3. UN Resolutions, voting outcomes and other formal pronouncements 242
         4. Documents, evidence, and decisions from international tribunals 243
            (a) The value of ICTY decisions 244
            (b) Other international tribunals 247
         5. NGO reports 247
Contents

(a) Procedural differences 248
(b) Evaluative difference 249

C. Documents from National Sources 250
  1. National legislation 251
  2. Official declarations and public statements 251
  3. Official records 253
  4. Internal documents 254
  5. Documents from third party States 254

D. Maps and Cartographic Materials 255
  1. The evidentiary roles of maps 257
     (a) Cautious approach to maps as evidence 258
     (b) Special vigilance 259
     (c) Map-makers and hearsay evidence 259
     (d) Reluctance to give maps probative value 260
     (e) Case study: Burkina Faso/Mali 261
     (f) Maps drawn by boundary commissions and other official or government bodies 265
  3. Maps as evidence in identifying a boundary 266
     (a) Maps are not a root of legal title per se 266
     (b) Maps as integrated into a boundary treaty 267
     (c) Maps as corroborating other evidence 268
     (d) Maps as contradictory evidence 269
     (e) Maps as evidence of the intention of states 270
     (f) Maps as evidence of acquiescence 270
     (g) Maps as evidence of notoriety of the facts to an opposing state 273
     (h) Maps as evidence of the subsequent practice of states 273
     (i) Maps as a means of interpreting a treaty 274
     (j) Maps as evidence of certain facts 275
  4. Conclusions 276

E. Press Reports 276
  1. Press information as corroborative secondary evidence 277
  2. The minimal value of press information 278

F. Affidavits 279
  1. Submission 279
  2. Evaluation 280
  3. Source and content of statements 281
  4. Timing, purpose, and context of production 282
  5. Summary 283

G. Audio and Visual Materials: Photographs, Films, Models 283
  1. Submission 284
  2. Evaluation 287

H. Satellite Imagery and Digital Mapping 288
  1. Submission 289
  2. Evaluation 291
8. TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE 307
   I. The Lack of Testimonial Evidence in the ICJ 308
   II. Procedure Concerning Testimonial Evidence 311
       A. Witness Handling 315
   III. Categorization—Witness, Expert, or Witness-Expert 319
       A. Creation of the Category of Witness-Expert 321
   IV. Use of Witness Statements and Depositions 324
       A. Witness Statements 324
       B. Depositions 326
   V. Conclusion 327

9. EXPERT EVIDENCE 329
   I. The Qualification of Experts 331
   II. The Court’s Appointment of Experts 332
   III. Private Experts 334
       A. Assessors 335
       B. Experts Assisting with Judgments 336
       C. The Use of Experts by the Court Without the Knowledge of the Parties 337
   IV. Experts Appointed by the Parties 339
       A. Experts Called to Give an Opinion to the Court 340
       B. Experts Forming Part of the Delegation 341
           1. Distinction between counsel and experts forming part of the delegation 341
   V. Technical and Scientific Evidence 343
   VI. Case Studies 345
       A. Qatar v Bahrain Case 1994 346
       B. Gabčíkovo-Nagymaros Case 1997 346
       C. Cameroon v Nigeria Case 2002 348
           1. The land boundary 348
           2. The maritime boundary 350
           3. Demarcation of the boundaries—ongoing difficulties 351
Contents

VI. Considerations for the Future 352
   A. Improving the Use of Expert Evidence 353
   B. A Comparative Study—Guyana v Suriname 354
   C. An Alternative Viewpoint—Recognizing the Limitations of the ICJ 356

VIII. Conclusion 358

10. EVIDENCE IN PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE COURT'S ADVISORY JURISDICTION 359
   I. The Advisory Function of the Court 360
      A. The Court's Advisory Competence 360
      B. Origins and Purpose of the Advisory Jurisdiction 361
         1. The PCIJ and the introduction of an advisory function 361
         2. Transfer of the advisory function to the ICJ 362
   II. Participation in Proceedings and the Production of Evidence 363
      A. Requesting Entities: Organs and Agencies of the United Nations 363
         1. Evidentiary role of the requesting entity 364
      B. Other Participants: States 364
         1. States as amici curiae 365
      C. Other Participants: Inter-Governmental Organizations 365
      D. Other Participants: Non-Governmental Organizations 366
      E. Other Participants: Individuals 368
         1. Directly affected individuals 368
         2. Individual experts 368
      F. Production of Evidence by the Court 369
   III. Dispute Resolution under the Court's Advisory Jurisdiction 372
      A. International Organizations and Disputes 372
      B. Settlement of Disputes Directly Involving International Organizations 373
      C. Settlement of Disputes Indirectly Involving International Organizations: 'Legal Questions Actually Pending Between States' 374
         1. Characterization of the advisory request 374
         2. Requests for guidance in the organization's own action 374
         3. Requests relating to 'legal questions actually pending between states' 376
         4. Composition of the Court: judges ad hoc 378
      D. Appellate Review of International Administrative Disputes 378
   IV. Procedural Aspects of Evidence in Advisory Cases 382
Contents

A. Initiation of Proceedings: Request for an Advisory Opinion
   1. Submission of evidence: ‘documents likely to throw light upon the question’ 383
   2. Entitlement to appear and ability to furnish information 385

B. Conduct of Written and Oral Proceedings 390
   1. Written proceedings 389
   2. Oral proceedings 389

V. The Evaluation of Evidence in Advisory Proceedings 390
   A. The Duty of the Court 390
   B. ‘No Burden of Proof’ 391
   C. ‘Insufficiency of Information’ 393
   D. Specific Findings of Fact and Standard of Proof 397

VI. Conclusion 400

11. CONCLUSION 409

I. Flexibility 410
II. Sovereignty of the Parties and their Relationship with the Court 412
III. Legal Traditions 415
IV. Recommendations for the Future 416