Madness in Medieval Law and Custom

Edited by

Wendy J. Turner
CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ..................................................... ix
Abbreviations ........................................................ xi
Contributors ............................................................ xiii

Introduction ............................................................. 1
  Wendy J. Turner

Town and Country: A Comparison of the Treatment of the Mentally Disabled in Late Medieval English Common Law and Chartered Boroughs ................................................ 17
  Wendy J. Turner

Insanity, Exculpation and Disempowerment in Byzantine Law ................................................................. 39
  Margaret Trenchard-Smith

The Mysterious Case of the 'Mad' Rector of Bletchingdon: The Treatment of Mentally Ill Clergy in Late Thirteenth-Century England .......................................................... 57
  James R. King

Silent Testimony: Emotional Displays and Lapses in Memory as Indicators of Mental Instability in Medieval English Investigations ............................................................. 81
  Wendy J. Turner

Crimes of Passion: Emotion and Madness in French Remission Letters ......................................................... 97
  Aleksandra Pfau

  Kate McGrath
The King’s Stupor: Dealing with Royal Paralysis in Late Medieval England .......................... 147
  Cory James Rushton

A Cure for the King means Health for the Country:
The Mental and Physical Health of Henry VI .................. 177
  Wendy J. Turner

Afterword ................................................................. 197
  Irina Metzler

Bibliography ............................................................. 219

Index ................................................................. 239