UNHCR and International Refugee Law
From treaties to innovation

Corinne Lewis
Contents

Acknowledgements
Table of cases
Table of instruments
List of abbreviations
Introduction

1 Foundations for UNHCR’s international refugee law role
1.1 Introduction 1
1.2 Historical foundations 2
1.2.1 Refugee organizations created by the League of Nations 2
1.2.2 Subsequent refugee organizations 7
1.2.3 The need for a new organization 12
1.3 Statutory foundations 13
1.3.1 Responsibilities related to international refugee law 15
1.4 Conclusion 21

2 UNHCR’s statutory role and work related to refugee law
2.1 Introduction 23
2.2 UNHCR and the development of refugee law 24
2.2.1 UNHCR’s mandate 24
2.2.2 UNHCR’s contribution to international treaties
for the protection of refugees 25
2.2.3 UNHCR’s contribution to other instruments 29
2.3 UNHCR’s mandate concerning the effectiveness of refugee law 37
2.3.1 Effectiveness 37
2.3.2 Ratification of and accession to treaties 39
2.3.3 Implementation of treaties in national law 40
2.3.4 Application 42
5.3 UNHCR doctrine 113
   5.3.1 Filling gaps 113
   5.3.2 Clarifying ambiguities 116
   5.3.3 Influencing the development of refugee law 121
5.4 The Convention Plus initiative 126
5.5 Conclusion 128

6 UNHCR's approaches to improve the effectiveness of international refugee law 132
   6.1 Introduction 132
   6.2 Accessions to conventions for the protection of refugees 132
   6.3 Implementation of conventions for the protection of refugees 135
      6.3.1 Promotion of implementation of the 1951 Refugee Convention/1967 Protocol 136
      6.3.2 Promotion of implementation of other agreements 137
      6.3.3 Capacity building 137
   6.4 Application of conventions for the protection of refugees 142
      6.4.1 Support for UNHCR's supervisory responsibility 143
      6.4.2 UNHCR's enhanced co-operation with international and regional human rights bodies 145
      6.4.3 Amicus curiae 150
      6.4.4 Promotion of international refugee law 151
   6.5 Conclusion 154

7 Concluding remarks: applying lessons from the past to enhance UNHCR's role in the future 160

Bibliography 171
Index 188