The Sovereign Citizen

Denaturalization and the Origins of the American Republic

Patrick Weil
PART I. THE FEDERALIZATION OF NATURALIZATION

Chapter 1. Denaturalization, the Main Instrument of Federal Power 15

Chapter 2. The Installment of the Bureau of Naturalization, 1909–1926 30

Chapter 3. The Victory of the Federalization of Naturalization, 1926–1940 44

PART II. A CONDITIONAL CITIZENSHIP

Chapter 4. The First Political Denaturalization: Emma Goldman 55

Chapter 5. Radicals and Asians 65

Chapter 6. In the Largest Numbers: The Penalty of Living Abroad 83

Chapter 7. The Proactive Denaturalization Program During World War II 92

PART III. WAR IN THE SUPREME COURT

Chapter 8. Schneiderman: A Republican Leader Defends a Communist 111
Contents

Chapter 9. Baumgartner: The Program Ends, but Denaturalization Continues  124

Chapter 10. A Frozen Interlude in the Cold War  134

Chapter 11. Nishikawa, Perez, Trop: "The Most Important Constitutional Pronouncements of This Century"  145

Chapter 12. American Citizenship Is Secured: "May Perez Rest in Peace!" 166

Conclusion  176

Appendix 1. Emma Goldman, "A Woman Without a Country"
   From Mother Earth (1909)  187
   From Free Vistas (1933)  188

Appendix 2. Chiefs of the Naturalization Bureau and Evolution of Departmental Responsibilities  196

Appendix 5. Supreme Court and Other Important Court Decisions Related to Denaturalization and Nonvoluntary Expatriation from Schneiderman and Participating Supreme Court Justices  200

Notes  203

Archival Sources and Interviews  267

Index  271

Acknowledgments  283