The Interception of Vessels on the High Seas
Contemporary Challenges to the Legal Order of the Oceans

Efthymios Papastavridis
Contents

Foreword
Catherine Redgwell

Preface

Acknowledgements

List of Abbreviations

Table of Cases

Table of Treaties and Other International Agreements

1. Introduction

   I. Introductory Remarks: Enquiring Maritime Interception on the High Seas
      1
   II. Contemporary Challenges to the Freedom of the High Seas and Maritime Interception
       4
      A. Terrorism and WMD
      B. Drug Trafficking
      C. Illicit Migration
      D. Piracy and Armed Robbery at Sea
      E. IUU Fishing
      F. Are They All 'Threats to Maritime Security'?
       13
   III. The Outline of the Book
      15

2. The Theoretical Framework of the Right of Visit on the High Seas:
   Mare Liberum v Mare Clausum Revisited
   18
   I. The Historical Claims to Freedom of the Seas
      18
      A. From Antiquity to the Middle Ages
      B. The 'Battle of the Books'
      C. The Era of Consolidation and Codification of Mare Liberum
      20
      D. The Legal Nature of the High Seas
      E. Concluding Observations
      24
   II. Contemporary Right of Visit: Lessons from the Historical and the Theoretical Framework of Mare Liberum
      24
      A. Mare Liberum v Mare Clausum: Antithetical or Complementary Concepts?
      24
Contents

III. IUU Fishing as a Threat to the Freedom of Fishing
   A. Introduction: The Problem of IUU Fishing 197
   B. The LOSC and the 1995 Straddling Stocks Agreement 199
   C. The RFMOs 202
   D. Concluding Remarks 203

7 Interception on the High Seas to Counter Drug Trafficking
   I. Introduction 205
   II. International Legal Justifications for Interference with Drug Smuggling on the High Seas 206
      A. Multilateral Treaty-Law Bases for Interception 206
      B. Bilateral Treaty-Law Bases for Interception 226
      C. Customary Law Bases for Interception 237
   III. Additional International Legal Issues in the Course of Interception Operations 241
      A. The Question of the Use of Force 242
      B. Human Rights Restrictions 242
      C. Jurisdictional Issues Involved 245
   IV. Concluding Remarks 258

8 Interception on the High Seas and Human Beings
   I. Introduction 259
   II. International Legal Justifications for Interference on the High Seas 263
      A. Treaty Bases for Interference 263
      B. Customary Law Bases for Interference 291
   III. Additional International Legal Issues in the Course of Interception Operations of Human Beings 301
      A. Use of Force and Interception of Human Beings 301
      B. The Principle of Non-Refoulement and Human Beings on the High Seas 302
   IV. Concluding Remarks 308

9 Conclusions 309

Bibliography 315

Index 345