NAFTA and Sustainable Development

HISTORY, EXPERIENCE, AND PROSPECTS FOR REFORM

Edited by
HOOI L. KONG
McGill University

L. KINVIN WROTH
Vermont Law School

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
Contents

List of Editors and Contributors

Acknowledgments

---

Introduction: NAFTA and Sustainable Development
L. Kinvin Wroth and Hoi L. Kong

---

PART I. PROCESS: NAFTA AND NAAEC

1. Forgotten Promises: Neglected Environmental Provisions of the NAFTA and the NAAEC
   Geoffrey Garver
   page 15

2. Should Citizens Expect Procedural Justice in Nonadversarial Processes? Spotlighting the Regression of the Citizen Submissions Process from NAAEC to CAFTA-DR
   Giselle Davidian
   page 37

3. Choosing the Right Whistle: The Development of the Concept of Environmental Law under the Citizen Submissions Process
   Paolo Solano
   page 75

4. Pending Proceedings in the New Guidelines for Submissions on Enforcement Matters: An Improved Regression?
   Montserrat Rovalo
   page 97
5 Form over Substance: Procedural Hurdles to the NAAEC Citizen Submission Process
Leslie Wells

PART II. SPECIFIC ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES UNDER NAFTA AND NAAEC

6 Downward Harmonization: Mexico’s Industrial Livestock Revolution
Pamela Vesilind

7 Agricultural Biotechnology and NAFTA: Analyzing the Impacts of U.S. and Canadian Policies on Mexico’s Environment and Agriculture
Laurie J. Beyranevand

8 Assessing Assessments of NAFTA’s Marine Environment: The Commission for Environmental Cooperation Meets the World Ocean Assessment
Betsy Baker

9 Sustainable Development, NAFTA, and Water
Katia Opalka

10 Indigenous Peoples in North America: Bridging the Trade and Environment Gap to Ensure Sustainability under NAFTA and NAAEC
Nicole Schabus

11 Climate Change, Sustainable Development, and NAFTA: Regional Policy Harmonization as a Basis for Sustainable Development
Freedom-Kai Phillips

12 The Principle of Public Participation in NAFTA Chapter 11 Disputes
Avidan Kent

13 Preventing Environmental Deterioration from International Trade and Investment: How China Can Learn from NAFTA’s Experience to Strengthen Domestic Environmental Governance and Ensure Sustainable Development
Danni Liang and Jingjing Liu
PART III. PROPOSALS FOR REFORM AND LESSONS GOING FORWARD

14 Pathways of Influence in the NAFTA Regime and Their Implications for Domestic Environmental Policy Making in North America
   Sébastien Jodoin 329

15 The Citizen Submissions Process in the NAAEC: Theory and Practice in Deliberative Democratic Institutional Design for Transnational Institutions
   Hoi L. Kong 351

16 Assessing ENGO Influence in North American Environmental Politics: The Double Grid Framework
   Raúl Pacheco-Vega 373

Index 391