

ADMINISTRATIVE MEASURES TO PREVENT AND TACKLE CRIME

LEGAL POSSIBILITIES AND PRACTICAL APPLICATION IN EU MEMBER STATES

A.C.M. SPAPENS, M. PETERS AND D. VAN DAELE (EDS.)

LinC
LEUVEN INSTITUTE OF CRIMINOLOGY

Ministry of Security and Justice

TILBURG
UNIVERSITY

Uitendaele
Society

eleven
international publishing

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Part I General introduction

1	Introduction	3
	A.C.M. Spapens, M. Peters &amp; D. Van Daele
1.1	Background of the research	3
1.2	Scope of the study and definition of ‘administrative approach’	4
1.2.1	Scope of the study	4
1.2.2	Definition of the concept ‘administrative approach’	6
1.3	Methodology	7
1.3.1	Legal study	9
1.3.2	Empirical study	11
1.4	Structure of the report	12
	Bibliography	13

Part II The legal framework in ten EU Member States

2	The administrative approach in Belgium	17
	D. Van Daele
2.1	Introduction: the debate about the administrative approach to combatting organised crime in Belgium	17
2.2	Instruments to screen and monitor persons and legal entities	18
2.2.1	The granting of licences by administrative authorities	18
2.2.1.1	Licences for pubs, restaurants and hotels	18
2.2.1.2	Gaming licences	20
2.2.1.2.1	General principles	20
2.2.1.2.2	The operation of a casino	21
2.2.1.2.3	The operation of a slot machine arcade	22
2.2.2	The regulation of prostitution	23
2.2.2.1	Municipal regulations	23
2.2.2.2	The sale of alcohol in brothels	24
2.2.3	The suspension and withdrawal of licences as administrative sanctions	25
2.2.3.1	Legal basis	25
2.2.3.2	Scope	26

TABLE OF CONTENTS

2.2.3.3	Procedure	26
2.2.3.3.1	Prior notice	26
2.2.3.3.2	Hearing of the person concerned	27
2.2.3.3.3	Proportionality principle	29
2.2.3.3.4	Duty to state grounds	29
2.2.3.4	Legal remedies	29
2.2.4	The suspension of a licence as an order preservation measure	30
2.2.5	Public procurement law	31
2.3	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	32
2.3.1	Municipalities and the maintenance of public order	32
2.3.2	The closure of an establishment as an administrative sanction	33
2.3.3	The closure of a place or establishment as an administrative police measure	34
2.3.3.1	Non-fulfilment of operating conditions	34
2.3.3.1.1	Scope	34
2.3.3.1.2	Procedure	34
2.3.3.1.3	Duration of the closure	35
2.3.3.2	Disturbance of public order around an establishment	35
2.3.3.2.1	Scope	35
2.3.3.2.2	Procedure	36
2.3.3.2.3	Duration of the closure	37
2.3.3.3	Disturbance of public order in an establishment	38
2.3.3.4	Infringements of the drug legislation	39
2.3.3.4.1	Scope	39
2.3.3.4.2	Procedure	40
2.3.3.4.3	Duration of the closure	40
2.3.3.5	Indications of trafficking or smuggling in human beings	41
2.3.3.5.1	Scope	41
2.3.3.5.2	Procedure	42
2.3.3.5.3	Duration of closure	43
2.4	The information position of the administrative authorities	43
	Bibliography	46
3	The administrative approach in the Czech Republic	51
	P. Zeman
3.1	Introduction	51
3.1.1	Approach to serious and organized crime and measures outside the scope of criminal law in the Czech Republic	51

3.1.1.1	Context	51
3.1.1.2	Historical background to the approach to organized crime in the Czech Republic	53
3.2	Existing measures on screening and/or monitoring the past and present criminal activities of natural persons	55
3.2.1	Licences	60
3.2.2	Subsidies	62
3.2.3	Tenders	64
3.2.4	Screening and/or monitoring procedure and permitted information sources	67
3.2.4.1	Licences	68
3.2.4.2	Subsidies	70
3.2.4.3	Tenders	70
3.2.5	Legal protection for a screened and/or monitored person	72
3.2.5.1	Licences	72
3.2.5.2	Subsidies	75
3.2.5.3	Tenders	75
3.2.6	Existing measures on screening and/or monitoring legal persons	76
3.3	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	77
3.3.1	Legal framework	77
3.3.2	Administrative offences against public order	79
3.3.3	Closure and/or expropriation of premises owing to a disturbance of public order	81
3.4	Seizing of assets	82
3.5	Other relevant measures	84
3.6	Conclusion	86
	Bibliography	88
4	The administrative approach in England and Wales	91
	M. Peters &amp; A.C.M. Spapens
4.1	Introduction	91
4.2	Administrative authorities and their powers – an overview	93
4.3	Background of the current policies on serious and organized crime in the United Kingdom	98
4.4	Substantive instruments	104
4.4.1	Possibilities for screening and monitoring of persons	105
4.4.1.1	Disclosure and barring of persons	105

TABLE OF CONTENTS

4.4.1.2	Screening of persons in scope of the Money Laundering Regulations	116
4.4.2	Access to relevant information by government institutions	118
4.4.2.1	The Crime and Courts Act 2013 – the NCA as information gateway	118
4.4.2.2	Suspicious Activity Reports – information on legal entities	124
4.4.2.3	Possibilities for local information exchange: partnership working	126
4.4.3	Closing or expropriating housing	130
4.4.4	Tools for seizing assets outside the scope of criminal procedure	137
4.4.5	Other tools	139
	Bibliography	141
	Annex	145
5	The administrative approach in France	151
	D. Van Daele
5.1	Introduction	151
5.1.1	French administrative organisation	151
5.1.2	The administrative approach to combating organised crime in the context of organised crime policy in France	155
5.2	Essential characteristics of French administrative procedure	157
5.2.1	Types of administrative decisions	157
5.2.2	Due process in administrative proceedings	157
5.2.2.1	General principles	157
5.2.2.2	Hearing of participants	158
5.2.2.3	Access to the file	159
5.2.2.4	Duty to state grounds	159
5.2.3	The execution of administrative decisions	160
5.2.3.1	General principles	160
5.2.3.2	Administrative sanctions	161
5.2.3.2.1	Concept and scope	161
5.2.3.2.2	Revocation of an authorisation as an administrative sanction	162
5.2.3.2.3	Substantive and procedural guarantees	162
5.2.4	Repeal of administrative acts	164
5.2.4.1	Two types of repeal	164
5.2.4.2	Revocation of individual administrative acts	164
5.2.4.2.1	Individual administrative decisions creating rights	164
5.2.4.2.2	Individual administrative decisions not creating rights	165
5.2.4.3	Withdrawal of individual administrative acts	165

5.2.4.3.1	Individual administrative decisions creating rights	165
5.2.4.3.2	Individual administrative decisions not creating rights	166
5.3	Instruments to screen and monitor persons and legal entities	167
5.3.1	Screening and monitoring in specific sectors	167
5.3.1.1	The principle of freedom of trade and industry and its restrictions	167
5.3.1.2	Licences for pubs and restaurants	168
5.3.1.3	Casino licences	170
5.3.1.4	The regulation of prostitution	172
5.3.1.4.1	The abolitionist regime	172
5.3.1.4.2	The closure of premises	175
5.3.1.4.3	Withdrawal of bar or restaurant licences	176
5.3.2	Public procurement law	176
5.4	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	177
5.4.1	The police powers of the prefect of the department	177
5.4.2	The police powers of the mayor	179
5.4.3	The Prefecture of Police of Paris	180
5.4.4	Administrative police measures	181
5.4.4.1	Concept, scope, and limitations	181
5.4.4.2	The revocation of an authorisation	182
5.4.4.3	The closure of pubs, restaurants and discotheques	183
	Bibliography	184
6	The administrative approach in Germany	191
	D. Van Daele
6.1	Introduction	191
6.1.1	German administrative organisation	191
6.1.2	The administrative approach to combating organised crime in the context of organised crime policy in Germany	193
6.2	Essential characteristics of German administrative procedure	195
6.2.1	Verwaltungsverfahren and Verwaltungsakt	195
6.2.2	The course of the administrative procedure	197
6.2.2.1	The commencement of proceedings	197
6.2.2.2	The administrative investigation	197
6.2.2.3	Due process in administrative proceedings	198
6.2.2.3.1	Hearing of participants	198
6.2.2.3.2	Access to the file	199
6.2.2.3.3	Administrative secrecy	200
6.2.2.4	The termination of proceedings	200

TABLE OF CONTENTS

6.2.3	Repeal of administrative acts	201
6.2.3.1	Legal basis	201
6.2.3.2	Revocation of a lawful administrative act	202
6.2.3.2.1	Grounds for revocation of non-beneficial administrative acts	203
6.2.3.2.2	Grounds for revocation of beneficial administrative acts	203
6.2.3.3	Withdrawal of an unlawful administrative act	205
6.2.3.3.1	Grounds for withdrawal of non-beneficial administrative acts	205
6.2.3.3.2	Grounds for withdrawal of beneficial administrative acts	205
6.2.3.4	Procedural deadlines	207
6.2.3.5	Effects of revocation and withdrawal	207
6.2.3.6	Compensation	208
6.3	Instruments to screen and monitor persons and legal entities	209
6.3.1	Screening and monitoring on the basis of sector-specific laws	209
6.3.1.1	Trade regulation act	209
6.3.1.1.1	Freedom of trade	209
6.3.1.1.2	License requirements and inspection	210
6.3.1.1.3	Prohibition to practice a trade due to unreliability	211
6.3.1.1.4	Prohibition to practice a trade due to disadvantages and dangers	212
6.3.1.2	Law on public houses and restaurants (Licensing Act)	212
6.3.1.3	The regulation of prostitution	214
6.3.1.3.1	The situation before the Prostitution Act of 20 December 2001	214
6.3.1.3.2	The current regime	214
6.3.1.4	The regulation of gambling	217
6.3.1.4.1	The division of powers between Federation and Länder	217
6.3.1.4.2	The regulation of casino gambling	217
6.3.1.4.3	The regulation of gambling in amusement arcades	218
6.3.2	Public procurement law	219
6.3.3	The prohibition of an association	220
6.3.3.1	The freedom of association and its restrictions	220
6.3.3.2	Associations contravening the criminal law	221
6.3.3.3	Unconstitutional associations	222
6.3.3.4	The prohibition order	223
6.4	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	224
6.4.1	Police services and Ordnungsbehörden	224
6.4.2	Public order maintenance by the Ordnungsbehörden	225
6.4.3	The closure of premises	226
6.5	The information position of the administrative authorities	227
6.5.1	Exchange of information between administrative authorities	227
6.5.1.1	Exchange of information at national level	227

6.5.1.2	Exchange of information at European level	229
6.5.2	Data from criminal case files	229
6.5.3	Data regarding criminal convictions	231
6.5.4	Tax information	231
	Bibliography	233
7	The administrative approach in Italy	239
	F. Calderoni &amp; F. Di Stefano
7.1	Introduction	239
7.1.1	Background	239
7.1.2	The history of antimafia measures in Italy	240
7.2	Screening and monitoring	243
7.2.1	Documentazione antimafia	243
7.2.1.1	History of the legislation	243
7.2.1.2	The Antimafia Code in force	244
7.2.1.3	Self-certification	252
7.2.2	Other screening and/or monitoring procedures	253
7.2.3	Legal protection of natural and legal persons subject to screening and/or monitoring	254
7.3	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	255
7.3.1	Revoking or refusing licences, subsidies, or government or other tenders	255
7.3.2	Closure and/or expropriation of premises	256
7.4	Seizure and confiscation of assets	256
7.4.1	Criminal confiscation	257
7.4.2	Extended confiscation	258
7.4.3	Preventive seizure and confiscation	258
7.4.4	Equivalent confiscation	259
7.5	The dissolution of local administrations owing to mafia infiltration	260
	Bibliography	262
8	The administrative approach in the Netherlands	265
	M. Peters &amp; A.C.M Spapens
8.1	Introduction	265
8.1.1	Background	265
8.1.2	Historical background in the Netherlands	266

TABLE OF CONTENTS

8.2	Screening and monitoring	269
8.2.1	Verklaring Omtrent het Gedrag (VOG)	270
8.2.2	The BIBOB legislation	272
8.2.2.1	Screening of applicants for licences	273
8.2.2.2	Screening of applicants for subsidies	275
8.2.2.3	Screening of tenderers under the BIBOB legislation	276
8.2.2.4	The screening procedure and information sources	278
8.2.2.5	Legal protection when permits, subsidies and tenders are refused or revoked	283
8.2.3	Wet controle op rechtspersonen (Wcp)	286
8.3	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	289
8.3.1	Instruments included in the Awb	289
8.3.2	Refusing and revoking permits under the local spatial plan regime	293
8.3.3	Municipal by-law (APV)	298
8.3.4	Closure and expropriation of premises	300
8.4	Seizing of assets	303
	Bibliography	304
9	The administrative approach in Poland	307
	M. Wąsek-Wiaderek &amp; A. Zbiciak
9.1	Introductory remarks	307
9.1.1	Background	307
9.1.2	Administrative measures to combat organized crime – overview	308
9.1.3	The National Crime Register, the National Centre of Criminal Infor- mation and other sources of information for screening and monitoring of persons/entities	310
9.1.3.1	The National Crime Register	310
9.1.3.2	The National Centre of Criminal Information	314
9.1.3.3	Other sources of information for screening and monitoring of per- sons/entities	315
9.1.4	Legal basis for exchange of information between administrative authorities and organs conducting criminal proceedings	315
9.2	Screening and monitoring of persons applying for a post/job in sectors vulnerable to criminal activities	317
9.2.1	Introduction	317
9.2.2	Public servants and persons exercising public duties	318
9.2.3	Private sector: persons requiring a professional licence	319
9.2.3.1	The professional licence for detectives	319

9.2.3.2	The professional licence for taxi drivers	320
9.3	The legal framework for the screening and monitoring of natural persons (with reference to economic activities)	320
9.3.1	Introduction	320
9.3.2	The Act on the Freedom of Economic Activity (FEA). General remarks	322
9.3.2.1	Activities requiring a concession (licensed activities)	323
9.3.2.1.1	Manufacture of and trafficking in explosives, weapons and ammunition	324
9.3.2.1.2	Manufacturing, processing, storing, transmitting, distributing and trading in fuels and energy	325
9.3.2.1.3	Protection of persons and property	326
9.3.2.1.4	Operating a casino	328
9.3.2.2	Regulated activity	331
9.3.2.3	Activities requiring a permit	337
9.3.3	Government tenders	344
9.3.3.1	Public procurement	344
9.3.3.2	Public aid for entrepreneurs	346
9.4	Screening and monitoring of entrepreneurs – the procedures	347
9.4.1	Data in central registers	347
9.4.1.1	The Central Registry and Information about Economic Activity (CRI-AEA)	348
9.4.2	The monitoring procedure	350
9.4.3	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	353
9.4.3.1	General instruments	353
9.4.3.2	Refusing and revoking a concession/permit, removal from the register of regulated activity	354
9.4.4	Legal protection	359
9.5	Other administrative instruments to combat or prevent crimes	361
9.5.1	Administrative instruments to counteract money laundering and financing of terrorism	361
9.5.1.1	Introductory remarks	361
9.5.1.2	The system for reporting suspicious transactions	362
9.5.1.3	The role of the General Inspector of Financial Information (GIFI) and the financial intelligence unit	364
9.5.1.4	Control of obligated institutions and imposition of administrative penalties	365
9.5.2	Temporary blocking of suspect funds by banks	367
9.5.3	Permit required for possession of firearms or ammunition	367

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Bibliography	370
10	The administrative approach in Spain	373
	A. Huesca &amp; J.E. Conde
10.1	Introduction	373
10.1.1	Context	373
10.1.2	A brief description of current police action	373
10.1.3	Introduction to Spanish public administration	377
10.2	Screening and/or monitoring of natural persons for criminal activity	380
10.2.1	Certificado de Antecedentes Penales (CAP)	380
10.2.2	General requirements for starting a business	388
10.2.3	Requirements concerning subsidies	391
10.2.3.1	Granting of subsidies	391
10.2.3.2	Revocation of subsidies	392
10.2.4	Requirements concerning government tenders	394
10.2.4.1	Award of tenders	394
10.2.4.2	Refusal or revocation of a tender	397
10.2.5	The legal protection in place for the natural or legal person subject to screening and/or monitoring	398
10.2.5.1	Personal data protection in Spain	398
10.2.5.2	Other rights	400
10.3	Instruments directed at preventing the disturbance of public order	401
10.3.1	Spatial planning	401
10.3.2	Inspection	402
10.3.2.1	The proceeding principles	402
10.3.2.2	Spanish administrative procedure	404
10.4	Seizing of assets	405
10.5	Other relevant measures in Spain	407
10.5.1	Money Laundering Prevention	407
10.5.2	The case of EuroVegas	410
	Bibliography	412
11	The administrative approach in Sweden	417
	L. Korsell &amp; M. Norlin
	Preface	417
11.1	Introduction	418

11.1.1	Administrative measures – what are they?	418
11.1.2	The Swedish development of administrative measures	419
11.2	Free enterprise and general prevention rules	425
11.2.1	Free enterprise – the core of Swedish business	425
11.2.2	General requirements for engaging in business	426
11.2.3	Fiscal control, liquidation and auditors	427
11.3	Ban on business activity	431
11.4	Permits or registration to engage in business activities	432
11.4.1	Conduct assessment with registry checks	432
11.4.2	Conduct assessment without registry checks as well as duty to report	434
11.4.3	Industries and professions with permit and reporting requirements	435
11.5	Further information on permit and reporting obligation	442
11.5.1	Requirement of a permit with conduct assessment	442
11.5.2	Requirement of a permit without conduct assessment	461
11.5.3	Other requirements for running certain businesses, with or without conduct assessment	461
11.5.4	Schematic summary of the described industries	464
11.6	Security classification and registry excerpts for work with children	468
11.6.1	Specific, conduct-assessed employment types	468
11.6.2	Security-classified positions under the Security Protection Act	469
11.6.3	Expanded requirements for registry excerpts with regard to work within activities concerning children	469
11.7	Subsidies, grants and subventions	470
11.7.1	The Swedish welfare systems' economic benefits	470
11.7.1.1	Administrative authorities	470
11.7.1.2	Legislation designed to prevent erroneous payments	471
11.7.2	Tools and features	471
11.7.2.1	Tools	471
11.7.2.2	Features	472
11.7.3	Economic benefits utilised in the context of economic and organised crime	472
11.7.3.1	Benefit fraud and administrative measures	472
11.7.3.2	Unemployment-related benefits for individuals	472
11.7.3.3	Social security benefits	474
11.7.3.4	Financial aid for studies	476
11.7.3.5	Subsidised employment – individual recruitment incentives and special support mechanisms	477

TABLE OF CONTENTS

11.7.3.6	Income support	478
11.7.3.7	Misuse of EU subsidies	478
11.8	Exclusion of suppliers in public procurement	479
11.9	Legal protection and right of review	480
11.10	Security measures	482
11.10.1	Civil procedure security measures	482
11.10.2	Other security measures	483
11.11	Evacuation measures in order to maintain public order	484
11.12	Conclusions	485
11.12.1	Levels of industry regulation	485
11.12.2	Patterns of development	487
11.12.3	The future of administrative measures for economic crime prevention purposes	495
	Bibliography	497
12	A legal comparison of the administrative approach to serious and organized crime in the EU	505
	M. Peters &amp; D. Van Daele
12.1	Introduction	505
12.2	The policies in the selected Member States	507
12.3	The legislative framework	511
12.3.1	The fragmented nature of the legislative framework	511
12.3.2	General applicable principles of administrative law	513
12.3.3	Economic sectors	515
12.4	Substantive instruments in the administrative approach to crime	517
12.4.1	Screening and monitoring instruments	517
12.4.1.1	Overarching screening instruments	519
12.4.1.1.1	Certificates of good conduct	520
12.4.1.1.2	Invasive overarching screening instruments	521
12.4.1.2	Screening instruments in the scope of licences	524
12.4.1.3	Screening instruments in the scope of subsidies	531
12.4.1.4	Screening in the scope of public procurement	532
12.4.1.5	Prohibitions to trade	536
12.4.2	Public order powers	537
12.4.2.1	Powers of inspection	538
12.4.2.2	Intervention by administrative authorities	538
12.4.2.2.1	Repeal of an administrative decision	539
12.4.2.2.2	Intervention in or around premises	540

12.4.2.2.3	Administrative fines	543
12.4.3	Forfeiting assets outside the scope of criminal law	544
12.4.4	Other measures	547
12.5	Due process	549
12.6	The institutional framework – the necessary infrastructure	552
12.6.1	The responsible authorities in the selected Member States	552
12.6.2	Horizontal institutional frameworks for the purposes of collaboration	555
12.6.3	National information databases	558
12.7	Concluding remarks	561
	Bibliography	563

Part III The administrative approach in practice

13	Practical application of the concept	569
	A.C.M. Spapens &amp; M. Peters
13.1	Introduction	569
13.2	Applying administrative regulations to prevent criminal infiltration	570
13.2.1	Introduction	570
13.2.2	Use of business regulations to prevent crime	570
13.2.3	Use of local public order regulations to prevent crime	573
13.2.4	Screening in the context of public procurement	574
13.2.5	BIBOB screening in the Netherlands	577
13.3	Working apart together ad hoc	578
13.3.1	Introduction	578
13.3.2	Administrative interventions	579
13.3.3	Cooperating with other public partners	580
13.3.4	Combining competences creatively: the Joker project	584
13.3.5	Cooperating with private parties	586
13.4	Working apart together in permanent/semi-permanent structures	587
13.4.1	Introduction	587
13.4.2	Integrated cooperation at the national level	588
13.4.3	Integrated cooperation at the regional level	593
13.4.4	Integrated cooperation at the local level	598
13.5	Conclusion	606
	Bibliography	609

Part IV The cross-border dimension in the EU

14	The potential for information exchange in Europe for the purpose of an administrative approach to crime	615
	M. Peters &amp; A.C.M. Spapens
14.1	Introduction	615
14.2	The possibility of the EU regulating a European Administrative Approach	616
14.2.1	Potential for regulating information exchange in support an administrative approach under the Area of Security, Freedom and Justice	616
14.2.2	Possibility of including multilateral treaties under the framework of the EU as offered by the integration of the Prüm Decision	620
14.3	Applicability of existing instruments on information exchange in the EU Member States – the legislative framework	622
14.3.1	The Schengen Convention	623
14.3.2	The EU Convention on Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters	626
14.3.3	The Swedish Initiative	628
14.3.4	The Prüm Convention and Prüm Decision	630
14.3.5	Naples II Convention	633
14.3.6	The European Convention on the Service Abroad of Documents Relating to Administrative Matters	634
14.3.7	The European Convention on the Obtaining Abroad of Information and Evidence in Administrative Matters	635
14.3.8	Convention on Mutual Administrative Assistance in Tax Matters	637
14.3.9	Legal provisions regarding the exchange of information on fiscal matters	639
14.4	Applicability of existing instruments on information exchange in the EU Member States – the organizational framework	641
14.4.1	Potential for sharing information under the Europol Council Decision	641
14.4.2	The information exchange structure under Eurojust	648
14.4.3	The information exchange structure under the Schengen Convention	652
14.4.4	Information-exchange of criminal records between Member States (ECRIS)	655
14.4.5	Information exchange structure regulated by the Naples II Convention	660

14.4.6	The information exchange structure regarding specific relevant topics in the EU	661
14.4.6.1	The information exchange structure of the Financial Intelligence Units	661
14.4.6.2	Information exchange structure of the Asset Recovery Offices	662
14.4.6.3	Information exchange in the field of cybercrime and cybersecurity	663
14.4.6.4	Information exchange in the fight against child exploitation and pornography	664
	Bibliography	667
Part V Conclusions and the way forward
15	Conclusions	671
	A.C.M. Spapens, M. Peters &amp; D. Van Daele
15.1	Introduction	671
15.2	General conclusions	671
15.3	Towards a practical definition of the term 'an administrative approach to serious and organized crime'	672
15.4	Administrative measures to prevent criminal infiltration in the legitimate economy	674
15.5	Applying administrative measures to tackle serious and organized crime	676
15.5.1	Applying the competences of administrative authorities	676
15.5.2	'Working apart together'	676
15.6	Information exchange is crucial	677
15.7	Information exchange across borders	678
16	The road ahead	681
	D. Van Daele, M. Peters &amp; A.C.M. Spapens
16.1	Recommended steps to develop a EU policy on an administrative approach to crime	681
16.2	Recommended steps for implementation of an administrative approach to crime on the national levels	683
16.3	Recommended steps for international and national information exchange	683
16.4	Comprehensive approach to implementation of the recommendations	685

TABLE OF CONTENTS

About the authors	687
Appendices	691