The CIVILIAN

and the MILITARY

Arthur A. Ekirch, Jr.

New York    Oxford University Press    1956
Contents

    Introduction, vii
    Acknowledgments, xi

i  The Anglo-American Heritage, 3

ii The Founding Fathers Reaffirm Civil Supremacy, 18

iii The Defeat of the Federalist Military Plans, 32

iv The Jeffersonian-Republican Surrender, 45

v A More Militant Nationalism and Growing Pacifism, 60

vi A Military Hero and Manifest Destiny, 74

vii The Menace of Civil War, 90

viii The Reconstruction of Civil Society, 107

ix The New Threat of Imperialism and Navalism, 124

x Theodore Roosevelt and Modern American Militarism, 140

xi European Militarism and American Preparedness, 156

xii Conscripting America for War, 176

xiii Disillusionment and Partial Disarmament, 195

xiv Militarism in Education, 217

xv The Hope of Isolation and Neutrality, 234

xvi Immersion in Total War, 254

xvii Toward the Garrison State, 271

    Bibliographical Comment, 291
    Notes, 293
    Index, 329