Risk Taking and Decisionmaking

FOREIGN MILITARY INTERVENTION DECISIONS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
STANFORD, CALIFORNIA
1998
Contents

Preface xi
Abbreviations xvii

1. Introduction 1

The Study of Risk and Foreign Military Intervention Decisions, 1 Methodology, 7 The Case Studies: Organization and Analysis, 10

PART ONE. THEORY

A Typology of Risks, 18 The Definition of Risk, 19 The Texture of Risk and the Taste for Risk, 26 Generic Response Patterns, 29 The Nature of Political-Military Problems, 31 Problem Framing and Risk Estimation, 33 The Communication of Risk, 40 Conclusions, 41

3. The Formation of Risk Judgments and Risk Preferences: A Sociocognitive Approach 43

Contextual Influences, 44 Culture and Risk, 60 The Decisionmaker: Cognition, Motivation, and Personality, 66 The Decisionmaker: Heuristics and Biases, 79 Risk-Taking Behavior in Small Groups: Causes and Processes, 87 The Organizational Setting, 105 Conclusions, 109
Contents

4. Foreign Military Intervention: National Capabilities and Constraints

- A Conceptualization of Foreign Military Intervention, 114
- Military Capability, 116
- Economic Capability, 124
- Political Capability, 125
- Target-State Attributes, 134
- The Antinomies of Time and Policy Effectiveness, 135
- Capabilities: Illusions and Realities, 138
- Optimal and Actual Intervention, 139
- Conclusions, 141

5. The International Milieu and Foreign Military Intervention: When and How Much Does the Milieu Matter?

- Systemic Constraints and Imperatives for Intervention, 144
- Structural Attributes of International Systems, 145
- Nonstructural Attributes of International Systems, 150
- Implications of the Systemic Analysis, 157
- The Response Modes of Third Parties, 158
- The Salience of Relative Capability, 163
- Conclusions, 167

PART TWO. THE CASE STUDIES: A COMPARATIVE ANALYSIS

6. Foreign Military Interventions with Low to Moderate Risks: Grenada, Panama, and Czechoslovakia

- The Grenada Case: An Overview, 172
- U.S. Interests, 174
- National Capabilities, 178
- International Factors: Incentives, Constraints, and Justifications, 186
- The Evolution of an Intuitive Decision, 190

- The Panama Case: An Overview, 195
- U.S. Interests, 199
- National Capabilities, 201
- The Marginal Role of International Factors, 208
- Explaining the Change in Preferences, 210
- The Modus Operandi of Risk-Averse Leaders, 214

- The Czechoslovakia Case: An Overview, 217
- Soviet Interests, 223
- National Capabilities, 227
- The Management of Conflicting International Incentives and Constraints, 236
- The Forging of a Consensus: The Risky Shift, 244

- Conclusions, 254

- The Vietnam Case: An Overview, 260
- U.S. Interests, 268
- National Capabilities, 271
- The International Milieu: The Challenge of Uncertainty, 293
- Lyndon Johnson: A Reluctant Risk Taker, 299
- Social Influences and Policy Persistence, 313
Contents

The Lebanon Case: An Overview, 325
Israel’s Interests, 332
National Capabilities, 335
The International Milieu: From Acquiescence to Acute Constraint, 351
The Making of a Quagmire: The Key Decisionmakers, 362
From Individual Risk-Taking Preferences to Government Policy, 373
Conclusions, 382

8. Conclusions and Implications 387

- The Sociocognitive Perspective, 387
- Formation of Risk Judgments and Risk Preferences, 391
- Foreign Military Intervention Decisions, 399

Notes 411

Bibliography 453

Index 511