Realism in International Relations and International Political Economy

The continuing story of a death foretold

Stefano Guzzini

London and New York
Contents

List of illustrations vii
Preface viii
Acknowledgements xiv

1 Assumptions of a historical sociology of realism 1

Part I Realism from containment to détente

2 Classical realism: Carr, Morgenthau and the crisis of collective security 15
3 The evolution of realist core concepts during the second debate 32
4 Realism and the US policy of containment 49
5 The turning point of the Cuban missile crisis: crisis management and the expanding research agenda 64
6 Epilogue: Soviet theories of International Relations 81

Interlude The crisis of realism

7 The policy of détente: Kissinger and the limits of concert diplomacy 95
8 International Relations in disarray: the inter-paradigm debate 108

Part II Realist responses to the crisis of realism

9 Systemic neorealism: Kenneth Waltz’s Theory of International Politics 125
10 International Political Economy as an attempt to update realism: the end of the Bretton-Woods system and hegemonic stability theory 142
Contents

11 International Political Economy at the convergence of realism and structuralism

Conclusion The fragmentation of realism

12 Realism gets lost: the epistemological turn of the 1980s and 1990s

13 Realism at a crossroads

Bibliography

Index