Cosmopolitanism, Identity and Authenticity in the Middle East

Edited by Roel Meijer

CURZON
Contents

Foreword vii
Acknowledgements ix
List of contributors xi

Introduction 1
Roel Meijer

Part I Cosmopolitanism in the Middle East
1 Cosmopolitanism and the Middle East 15
   Sami Zubaida
2 Cosmopolitanism: assumed alienation 35
   Stéphane Yerasimos

Part II Personal itineraries
3 From an Islamic upbringing to a cosmopolitan perspective: 43
   a personal odyssey
   El-Sayed Yassin
4 From localism to cosmopolitanism: a Bahreini perspective 55
   Munira al-Fadhel
5 The cultural impact of the left in Syria and Palestine: 61
   a personal view
   Hamida Na'ana
Part III Modernist Islam, cosmopolitanism and authenticity

6 The modernisation of Islam or the Islamisation of modernity 71
   Nasr Hamid Abu Zeid

7 Islamism: modernisation of Islam or Islamisation of knowledge 87
   Ahmad S. Moussalli

8 Islamic movements and authenticity: barriers to development 103
   Ridwan al-Sayyid

9 Authenticity, modernity and the Islamic movement in Tunisia 115
   Slaheddine Jourchi

10 Towards an objective, relative and rational Islamic discourse 129
   Laith Kubba

Part IV Nationalism, cosmopolitanism and authenticity

11 Universality, modernity and identity: the case of Morocco 145
   Abdellah Labdaoui

12 Cosmopolitanism and cultural specificity: the case of Jordan 159
   Schirin H. Fathi

13 The Egyptian national identity and pan-Arabism: variations and generations 171
   Ahmed Abdalla

14 Cosmopolitanism and cultural autarky in Egypt 183
   Mohamed Sayyid Said