Subregional Cooperation in the New Europe

Building Security, Prosperity and Solidarity from the Barents to the Black Sea

Edited by

Andrew Cottey
Lecturer, Department of Peace Studies
University of Bradford

Foreword by

Thorvald Stoltenberg
former Foreign Minister of Norway

in association with
THE EASTWEST INSTITUTE
Contents

List of Figures vii

Foreword: Stellar Moments viii
Thorvald Stoltenberg

Preface x

List of Abbreviations and Acronyms xii

Notes on the Contributors xiii

PART I: INTRODUCTION

1 Introduction 3
Andrew Cottey

2 European Security at the End of the Twentieth Century: 8
The Subregional Contribution
Anders Bjurner

PART II: SUBREGIONAL COOPERATION:
FROM THE BARENTS TO THE BLACK SEA

3 The Barents Euro-Arctic Council 23
Pertti Joenniemi

4 The Council of Baltic Sea States 46
Carl-Einar Stalvant

5 The Visegrad Group and Beyond: Security Cooperation 69
in Central Europe
Andrew Cottey

6 The Central European Free Trade Agreement: 90
Problems, Experiences, Prospects
Andrzej Kupich

7 The Central European Initiative 113
Christopher Cviic
PART III: SUBREGIONAL COOPERATION AND THE NEW EUROPEAN SECURITY ORDER

9 The Role of Subregional Cooperation in Post-Cold War Europe: Integration, Security, Democracy
   Alyson JK Bailes

10 Subregional Cooperation and the New European Security Architecture
   Andrew Cottey

11 Emerging Subregional Cooperation Processes: South-Eastern Europe, the Newly Independent States and the Mediterranean
   Ian Bremmer, Sophia Clement, Andrew Cottey and Thanos Dokos

PART IV: CONCLUSION

12 Conclusion
   Andrew Cottey

Appendices

Appendix 1. Membership of the Barents-Black Sea Subregional Group (August 1997)

Appendix 2. Members of the Steering Board of the EastWest Institute Project ‘Multi-Layered Integration: The Subregional Dimension’

Notes and References

Index