Neo-liberalism or Democracy? Economic Strategy, Markets, and Alternatives for the 21st Century

Arthur MacEwan
Tables and Figures vii
Acknowledgements ix

1 There are Alternatives 1

Neo-liberalism and alternatives /4 Plan of this book /11
The political context of economic alternatives /14
The limits of state action /19

I Neo-liberal Myths and the Meaning of Markets 23

2 International Commerce and Economic Development 25

The context: current globalization /26 Neo-liberal theory /31 Historical experience: a brief sketch /36 Re-examining the theory of international trade and investment /42 Globalization and development options /60

3 Economic Growth and the Distribution of Income 66

What's been happening to income distribution? /68
The neo-liberal justification of inequality /72 Income inequality and economic growth: the record /76 Why is relative income equality good for economic growth? /82
Income distribution and growth: what are the lessons? /94

4 The Social Construction of Markets 99

The construction of markets: illustrations /100 Market basics /107 Where markets come from: the role of the state /125
The role of markets in economic development /136

II A Strategy for Democratic Economic Development 143

5 The Bases of a Democratic Alternative: Definitions and Context 145

Democratic economic development /148 The context for alternatives /155
Contents

6 Macroeconomic Foundations of a Democratic Strategy 160
   Where can the money come from? /160 The feasibility of higher taxes /164 The need for capital controls /171

7 Social Programmes as the Core of a Democratic Strategy 175
   The core of democratic development /175 Education in a democratic development strategy /178 Other social programmes and democratic development /189

8 Democratic Development and the Shaping of Private Activity 198
   Some principles for directing the private sector /199 Pushing towards a technological ‘high road’ /203 The value of local production /214

III Conclusions 223

9 Power and Politics in the Pursuit of Democratic Development 225
   The agents of change /227 The globalization of politics /233

References 237
Index 248