

A

334200

The Political Economy of Monetary Union

Malcolm Levitt and Christopher Lord

Contents

List of Tables, Figures and Boxes	ix
1 Introduction	1
What is Different About Monetary Union?	2
Debates About Monetary Union	8
Structure of the Book	8
2 What is Monetary Union?	11
The Meaning of Monetary Union	11
Benefits, Costs and Risks of a Single Currency	14
The Required Economic Environment:
Economic Union	24
The Required Institutional Arrangements	26
Conclusions	27
3 Conceiving Monetary Union, 1957–88	29
The Early Political History of Monetary Integration	29
Monetary Questions and the Revival of European Integration, 1979–86	31
Political Preferences for Exchange Rate Stability	35
Political Discontent with the ERM	38
Conclusion	41
4 Bargaining Monetary Union, 1988–91	43
Setting the Agenda for Monetary Union	43
Counterproposals	50
Monetary Union and Change in the International System	52
The Intergovernmental Conference: the Bargaining Phase	57
Conclusion	61

5	Implementing Monetary Union, 1991–98	63
	The Ratification and Currency Crises of 1992–93	64
	The Politics of Convergence	66
	The Politics of Membership	72
	The End Game	77
6	The Economics of the Maastricht Treaty	80
	A Phased Transition	80
	Convergence and Timetables	82
	Danish and UK Options	86
	The Maastricht Model of Central Banking	87
	Treaty Provisions for Economic and Fiscal Policy Surveillance	89
	Exchange Rate Policy	91
	Monetary and Fiscal Policy Relationships	92
	Fixing Exchange Rates at the Start of Stage Three	94
	Practicalities: the Transition to the Single Currency	96
	Conclusions	98
7	The Economics of the Transition	100
	Convergence in Practice	101
	Fiscal Constraints in Stage Three	110
	Fixing Conversion Rates at the Start of EMU	110
	The Practical Implementation of the Single Currency	113
	Conclusions	118
8	Monetary Policy	120
	Central Bank Independence	120
	From Bundesbank to ECB	121
	Institutional Arrangements	125
	Decentralisation	128
	Monetary Policy Strategy	130
	Instruments of Monetary Policy	135
	Conclusions	144
9	Fiscal Policy	145
	Fiscal Discipline	145
	The Stability and Growth Pact	148

Contracyclical Fiscal Policy	153
The EU Budget	156
The Coordination of Monetary and Fiscal Policy	158
Conclusions	159
10 The Euro as a Global Currency	161
Visions of the Euro	161
Europe as an Economic Bloc	163
The Euro and Global Currency Stability	170
Conclusions	173
11 EMU and the Single Market for Financial Services	175
The Impediments	175
Principles Underlying the Single Market for Financial Services	176
Investment Services Directive	177
Collective Investment Funds	179
Securitisation	180
The Second Banking Directive	180
Conclusions	183
12 Executive Power under Monetary Union 1: the European Central Bank	185
Monetary Union and the EU Political System	185
Ways of Comparing Central Banks	187
The Nature of the ECB Mandate	193
The Federal Character of the ECB	196
13 Executive Power under Monetary Union 2: the European Council, Council of Ministers and Commission	203
The European Council and the Power of Appointment	204
The European Council and the Power of Treaty Change	207
Fiscal Coordination and the Politics of Institutional Choice	209
Mutual Surveillance, the Stability Pact and the Politics of the Council of Ministers	210

Interinstitutional Relationships: the ECB, Council and Commission	214
How Monetary Union is Changing the Council of Ministers	216
Conclusion: the Open Questions of European Economic Governance	220
14 Representation and Accountability under Monetary Union	223
Two Models of Accountability	226
The Need for Dual Accountability to Council and Parliament	229
The European Parliament's Role under Monetary Union	230
National Parliaments	239
15 The Place of Monetary Union in European Integration	240
Neofunctionalist and Liberal Intergovernmentalist Interpretations	240
Monetary Union, Multilevel Governance and State-Society Relations	245
Monetary Union, Democracy and Legitimacy	248
Monetary Union and the EU as an International Actor	250
Monetary Union and Flexible Integration	254
Bibliography	258
Index	272