Margins in European Integration

Edited by

Noel Parker
Senior Lecturer in European Politics
University of Surrey, Guildford

and

Bill Armstrong
Research Scholar
University of Surrey, Guildford
Contents

List of Tables vii
List of Figures viii
Acknowledgements ix
Preface x
Notes on the Contributors xxi

Part I What Makes the Margins Marginal? 1

1 Integrated Europe and its 'Margins': Action and Reaction 3
   Noel Parker

2 European Integration through the Kaleidoscope:
   the View from the Central and East European Margins 28
   Helen E. Hartnell

3 European Integration, Market Liberalization and Regional Economic Disparities 53
   Valerio Lintner

4 Economic Development and the Periphery of the European Union 69
   Leslie Budd

Part II Managing Economic Forces at the Margins 93

5 EU Trade and Aid Strategy in the Southern and Eastern Mediterranean 95
   Mina Toksoz

6 Multinational Investment on the Periphery of the European Union 105
   Christopher Flockton

7 Transnational Planning in the German–Polish
   Border Region 128
   Ann Kennard
vi Contents

Part III The Political Possibilities of Marginality 153

8 EU Territorial Governance and National Politics: Reshaping Marginality in Spain and Portugal 155
José Magone

9 Euroscepticism in the Ideology of the British Right 178
Christopher G. Flood

10 Home at Last? Czech Views of Joining the European Union 203
Peter Bugge

11 Historical Memory and the Boundaries of European Integration 230
Hugo Frey

Conclusions 247

Index 249