The State and International Relations

John M. Hobson
Contents

List of figures \hspace{1cm} page vi

Acknowledgements \hspace{1cm} viii

1 What's at stake in the 'second state debate'? Concepts and issues \hspace{1cm} 1

Part 1 Traditional theories of the state and international relations

2 Realism \hspace{1cm} 17

3 Liberalism \hspace{1cm} 64

Part 2 Recent sociological theories of the state and international relations

4 Marxism \hspace{1cm} 109

5 Constructivism \hspace{1cm} 145

6 Weberian historical sociology \hspace{1cm} 174

Part 3 Conclusion: proposing a 'structurationist' theory of the 'constitutive' state and global politics

7: Summarising and resolving the 'second state debate' \hspace{1cm} 217

References \hspace{1cm} 236

Index \hspace{1cm} 348