Practicing Democracy

ELECTIONS AND POLITICAL CULTURE IN IMPERIAL GERMANY

MARGARET LAVINIA ANDERSON

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS
PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY
CONTENTS

"Chaplainocracy" 107
Authority and Dissent 117
Solidarity: The Milieu, Catholic Women, and "Ballot Catholics" 123
After 1900: The Spectre of Clerical Influence Returns 133
Conclusions: Clerical Influence and Democracy 147

CHAPTER SIX

Bread Lords I: Junkers 152

The Lords of Humankind 156
"Affirmative Voting" and British Comparisons 166
Junkers and the State 173
How Mighty the Junkers? Competition from the Social Democrats, the Antisemites, and the Farmers' League 180
All Quiet on the Eastern Front 194

CHAPTER SEVEN

Bread Lords II: Masters and Industrialists 199

Their Master's Voice 199
The Ubiquity of Employer Pressure 205
In the Realm of the Chimney Barons 213
Alfred Krupp and the Bottom Line 220
International Perspectives 224
Change the Penal Code? The Rinteln Motions of 1886 231

PART III. DEGREES OF FREEDOM 239

CHAPTER EIGHT

Disabling Authority 241

The Secret Ballot and the Struggle for Reichstag Power 242
The Election Code Reforms of 1903 250
The Geography of Dissent 260
Economic Rationality: A Two-Way Street 265
Insuring the Voter 269

CHAPTER NINE

Going by the Rules 277

Rules of the Game 279
Defeating the Socialist Law 286
The Power of "Election Time" 289
The Rules of Public Speaking 295

CHAPTER TEN

Belonging 306

Conformity 306
Communitas Oblige 311
Extrusion 316
CONTENTS

Boycott 319
Subverting the Rules: Gerrymandering from Below 329
Who Is My Neighbor? The Imagined Community and the Demand for Proportional Representation 335

CHAPTER ELEVEN
Organizing 345
Ballots, Parliamentary Allowances, and Rail Passes 346
Machinework 356
Educating the Electorate 362
Powers of the Purse: Big Money, Party, and Neo-Corporativism 373
The Professionals 390

CHAPTER TWELVE
Conclusions 399
Weak Government, Strong State: The Paradoxes of Official Power 400
Hierarchy, Community, and Competition 415
Democracy's Apprentices 419
Habitation 426
Legacies 429

BIBLIOGRAPHY 439
INDEX 465