Sovereignty and European Integration
Towards a Post-Hobbesian Order

Marlene Wind
Associate Professor of European Integration
Institute of Political Science
Copenhagen
Denmark

Foreword by Joseph Weiler
Contents

Foreword by Joseph Weiler
Acknowledgements
List of Abbreviations

Part I: Introduction to Part I: International Relations and European Integration

1. The Nature of the European Beast
   - Sovereignty undivided
   - Law, political science and the construction of Europe
   - Defining European constitutional transformation
   - The no-change paradigm
   - Towards a theory of institutional contingency

2. From Theories of Integration to Theories of Institutions
   - Introduction
   - International relations theory – European integration as a limited contract
   - The pure contract argument
   - Two approaches to institutional change
   - Rational versus sociological institutionalism
   - Conclusions

3. The Ideology of Choice: a Rationalist Account of Institutions
   - Why do institutions emerge and why do they persist?
   - The ‘imperfect market’ logic applied to international relations and European politics
   - European integration as a two level game
   - Controlling international institutions
   - Critique
   - Conclusions

4. A Constructivist Account of Institutions and Social Change
   - Sociological institutionalism
Contents

Integrating agency and structure 60
Towards a constructivist theory of institutional change 64
A constructivist model of social transformation 68
The path dependency of complex organisations 71
Constructivism applied to the study of constitutional change 75

Part II

Introduction to Part II 80

5 Sovereignty and the Question of International Change 83
   Revisiting Leviathan 83
   The sources of authoritative legitimation in Europe 85
   Nineteenth-century conceptions of sovereignty 89
   The hierarchy of norms and the creation of an international legal order 95
   Conclusions 102

6 Governing with Judges? 104
   Introduction 104
   Do institutions matter? 108
   Political science, law and the study of European integration: is law at all relevant? 110
   Lawyers and legal integration: from doctrine to ‘law in context’ 113
   The ‘critical’ move 120

7 From Treaty to Constitution 123
   Introduction 123
   The first court 126
   From coal and steel to the Treaty of Rome 130
   The constitutionalising doctrines 135
   Giving community law direct effect 136
   Making community law supreme 145
   Extending the supremacy clause to other member states 150
   The lower national courts and the making of a European constitution 153

8 Are There Limits to EU Power Expansion? 158
   Introduction 158
   Exclusivity, pre-emption and state liability 162
   Basic rights 165
Contents

From negative to positive integration: between market and state 169
Effet utile and recent treaty developments 175
The principle of subsidiarity 176
Legal formalism and the juridicalisation of politics 178
Treaty amendments as a viable control mechanism? 182

9 Conclusion 189
Notes 194
References 214
Index 234