LAUNCHING INTO CYBERSPACE

Internet Development and Politics in Five World Regions

MARCUS FRANDA
Contents

Acknowledgments

Introduction: The Internet and World Politics  1

1 Thin Cyberspace in Africa and the LDCs  7
   Globalization and Interdependence, 9
   The Internet and the Gap Between Rich and Poor, 11
   New Internet Communicators and Nongovernmental Organizations, 18
   The Role of International Business, 23
   The Internet and World Government, 26
   The Internet Regime and International Relations, 29

2 Internet Cultures in Israel and the Arab World  41
   Israel as a High-Tech Enclave, 43
   Internet Development in Israel, 47
   Information Technology in the Arab Middle East, 52
   Inertia and Restraint in Internet and IT Development, 54
   Building Internet Infrastructures and Backbone, 57

3 The Middle East and the Global Internet Regime  67
   Internet Restrictions and Filtering, 67
   Getting Middle Eastern Governments Online, 71
   Online Business and Commerce in the Middle East, 73
   Islamic and Arab Nationalist Websites, 76
   Arab-Israeli Relations on the Internet, 80
   The Middle East and the Nascent International Regime for the Internet, 83
   Conclusions, 85
4 Information Technology and Political Cultures in Eurasia

IT Development and the Failure of Soviet Communism, 98
Legacies of Soviet Rule and Telecommunications Infrastructures in the FSU, 101
Internet Development in Russia, 106
E-Commerce and Investment, 110
Russia's "Information Security Doctrine," 112
Internet Development in Other FSU Nations, 114
Internet Cultures in Central Asia and the Caucasus, 118
Conclusions, 121

5 The Political Economy of the Internet in Eastern Europe

Telecommunications Infrastructures in Eastern Europe, 130
Approaches to Privatization: Hungary, the Czech Republic, and Poland, 132
EU Membership and Information Technology Investments, 137
Internet Development in the Baltics, 141
Internet Growth in Hungary, the Czech Republic, and Poland, 143
Internet Use in Slovenia and Slovakia, 146
Conclusions, 150

6 Internet Politics in the Former Soviet Union and Other Central/Eastern European States

Alternative Prospects for the Internet in Albania and Romania, 159
The Former Yugoslavia and Internet Development, 166
International Regime Issues in the FSU and Central/Eastern Europe, 175

7 China and India as Potential Internet Superpowers

Basic PRC Policy: Encouragement and Control, 188
PRC Accommodation to the International Regime, 191
PRC Security Concerns, 197
PRC Aspirations for an Independent Chinese Internet Regime, 198
Building a Uniquely Chinese Internet, 202
Internet Development in India, 203
Liberalization Policies and Foreign Investment, 205
India's Lead in Software Technology, 209
Software Development in China, 212
Indian Perceptions of Security/National Interests and the Internet, 214
India and the International Regime for the Internet, 218
8 The Internet in Comparative International Perspective 227
   The Internet, Sovereignty, and Democracy, 228
   International Political Economy, the Internet, and Globalization, 236
   Perspectives on Future Development, 240

List of Acronyms 245
Bibliography 251
Index 285
About the Book 297