

Special Interest Politics

A 341145

Gene M. Grossman and
Elhanan Helpman

The MIT Press
Cambridge, Massachusetts
London, England

Contents

List of Figures	xi
Preface	xiii
1	Introduction 1
1.1	SIG Activities and Tactics 4
1.2	About This Book 14
1.2.1	Methodology 14
1.2.2	Organization and Content 16
I	Voting 39
2	Voting and Elections 41
2.1	Direct Democracy 42
2.1.1	The Median Voter and the Agenda Setter 42
2.1.2	Sincere Versus Strategic Voting 45
2.1.3	Direct Democracy without Agenda Setters 45
2.1.4	Non-Single-Peaked Preferences 48
2.1.5	Multiple Policy Issues 50
2.1.6	Summary 52
2.2	Representative Democracy 53
2.2.1	The Downsian Model 54
2.2.2	Candidates with Policy Preferences 56
2.2.3	Endogenous Candidates 59
2.3	Electing a Legislature 64
2.3.1	Single-Member Districts 65
2.3.2	Proportional Representation 68
3	Groups as Voters 75
3.1	Turnout 76

3.2	Knowledge	87
3.3	Partisanship	95
II	Information	101
4	Lobbying	103
4.1	One Lobby	105
4.1.1	The Setting	106
4.1.2	Two States of the World	107
4.1.3	Three States of the World	110
4.1.4	Continuous Information	113
4.1.5	Ex Ante Welfare	118
4.2	Two Lobbies	120
4.2.1	Like Bias	121
4.2.2	Opposite Bias	130
4.2.3	Multidimensional Information	133
4.3	Appendix: A More General Lobbying Game	138
4.3.1	The General Setting	139
4.3.2	Properties of an Equilibrium	140
5	Costly Lobbying	143
5.1	Exogenous Lobbying Costs	145
5.1.1	Single Lobby, Dichotomous Information	145
5.1.2	Single Lobby, Continuous Information	150
5.1.3	Two Lobbies	152
5.2	Endogenous Lobbying Costs	161
5.2.1	Dichotomous Information	161
5.2.2	Many States of Nature	164
5.2.3	Multiple Interest Groups	168
5.3	Access Costs	171
5.3.1	Group with a Known Bias	172
5.3.2	Group with an Unknown Bias	176
5.3.3	Access Fees as Signals of SIG Preferences	180
6	Educating Voters	185
6.1	The Election	188
6.1.1	The Voters	188
6.1.2	The Parties	191
6.1.3	The Interest Group	192

6.2	Early Communication	194
6.2.1	Party Competition and Voting	195
6.2.2	Credible Messages	195
6.2.3	Who Gains and Who Loses?	199
6.3	Late Communication	201
6.3.1	Reports and Voting	202
6.3.2	Political Competition	204
6.3.3	Early and Late Communication	209
6.4	Endorsements	210
6.5	Educating Members	212
6.6	Appendix: SIG Leaders with a Broad Mandate	216
6.6.1	Communication Game When SIG Leaders Have a Broad Mandate	217
6.6.2	Political Competition When SIG Leaders Have a Broad Mandate	220
6.6.3	A Comparison of Two Mandates	221
III	Campaign Contributions	223
7	Buying Influence	225
7.1	One-Dimensional Policy Choice	226
7.2	The Allocation of Public Spending	233
7.3	Multiple Policy Instruments	235
7.4	Regulation and Protection	238
7.5	Bargaining	243
8	Competing for Influence	247
8.1	The Politician as Common Agent	249
8.2	The Minimum Wage	256
8.3	Compensating Equilibria	265
8.4	Trade Policy	270
8.5	Redistributive Taxation	275
8.6	Competition for Influence: Good Thing or Bad Thing?	279
9	Influencing a Legislature	283
9.1	Buying Votes	284
9.2	A Legislature with an Agenda Setter	291
9.3	Multiple Interest Groups	299

9.3.1	Randomized Offers	302
9.3.2	Competing for Influence at the Proposal Stage	309
9.3.3	The Scale of a Public Project	314
10	Contributions and Elections	319
10.1	Electoral Competition with Campaign Spending	321
10.1.1	The Voters	321
10.1.2	The Parties	324
10.1.3	The Interest Groups	326
10.2	One Interest Group	328
10.2.1	The Influence Motive	328
10.2.2	A Pure Electoral Motive	331
10.2.3	A Choice of Motives	334
10.3	Multiple Interest Groups	339
	References	347
	Index	357