 Laura M. Rival

Trekking Through History
THE HUAORANI OF AMAZONIAN ECUADOR

Contents

Illustrations and Tables xi
Preface xiii
Acknowledgments xxi
Note on Orthography xxiii

1 Trekking in Amazonia 1
Cross-Cultural Generalizations About Amazonian Societies 3
Amazon Trekkers 15

2 The Upper Amazon from Omagua Expansion to Zaparo Collapse 20
Historiography and Isolationist People 21
The Presence of Tupian People in the Upper Amazon 23
The Napo-Curaray Geopolitical Landscape at the Time of Correrias 30
The Fate of Zaparoan Peoples During the Rubber Era 33
Recorded Huaorani History 37
Historical Isolation, Adaptation, and Continuity 39

3 The Time and Space of Huaorani Nomadic Isolationism 46
Knowing, Remembering, and Representing the Past 46
Primeval Predation and Survival 49
Anger and Homicide 55
Warfare, History, and Kinship 59
From the Victim's Point of View 64

4 Harvesting the Forest's Natural Abundance 68
An Economy of Procurement 68
Chonta Palm Groves, Fructification, and Forest Bounty 84
The Giving Environment 88

5 Coming Back to the Longhouse 94
The Longhouse: To Belong and to Reside 95
The Sharing Economy 99
Affinal Pairing and Maternal Multiplicity 112
The Dialectics of Incorporation and Separation 119
A Gap in the Canopy 126
Contents

6 Eëmë Festivals: Ceremonial Increase and Marriage Alliance 129

Ahuene: The Tree-Couple 130
The Human Birds 133
Birds and Wild Boars 135
Tying the Knot 138
Ceremonial Drinking, “Wild” Marriages, and Social Distance 140
The Asymmetry Between Hosts and Guests 144
Alliance and Residence: A Comparative Perspective 147

7 Schools in the Rain Forest 152

Schooling, Identity, and Cultural Politics 154
Legacy of the Summer Institute of Linguistics 156
We Want Schools to Become Civilized 161
Civilized Bodies in the Making 163
Schools as Public Centers of Wealth 166
Trekking Away from School Villages 172
The Naturalization of Impersonal Donors 175

8 Prey at the Center 177

Notes 189
References 215
Index 239