State Building and Political Movements in Argentina, 1860-1916

David Rock

STANFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
STANFORD, CALIFORNIA 2002
Contents

Acknowledgments  ix

Introduction  1

1. The Age of Mitre  11
   - The Contest for the Provinces  14
   - The Contest for Buenos Aires  21
   - Rebellion in the West  30
   - External Consolidation: Uruguay and Paraguay  36
   - Internal Resistance  42
   - The Presidential Election of 1868  48
   - Epilogue  53

2. From the Caudillos to Federalization  56
   - The Fall of Caudillaje  58
   - The League of Governors  64
   - Immigrants and Gauchos in Buenos Aires  72
   - Buenos Aires: Alsinistas and Mitristas  81
   - The Road to Federalization  88
   - Epilogue  100

3. Order, Progress, and Revolt  102
   - The Roca Administration  103
   - Liberals, Clerics, and Women  109
   - The Rise and Fall of Juárez Celman  116
   - Epilogue  141

4. The Restoration of Roca and Its Challengers  144
   - The Challenge of the Radicals  145
   - Politics in the Late 1890s  163
   - Popular Politics: The Boundary and Debt-Conversion Questions  173
   - Epilogue  180
5. The Fall of the Oligarchy 182
   The Oligarchic Power Structure 183
   The Fall of Roca 192
   Reform and Its Aftermath 201
   Epilogue 214

Generalizations and Synthesis 216

Notes 233
Bibliography 289
Index 307
Map of the "Argentine Confederation," ca. 1850 xii