

A 368862

British Devolution and European Policy-Making

Transforming Britain into Multi-Level Governance

Simon Bulmer

*Jean Monnet Professor of European Politics
University of Manchester*

Martin Burch

*Professor of Government
University of Manchester*

Caitríona Carter

*Lecturer in European Union Studies
Edinburgh Law School
University of Edinburgh*

Patricia Hogwood

*Lecturer in Politics
University of Glasgow*

Andrew Scott

*Professor of European Union Studies
Edinburgh Law School
University of Edinburgh*

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

List of Tables, Box and Figure	vii
Preface	viii
The devolution project	ix
Leaders and events	xiv
Behind the politics: administering devolution	xvii
List of Abbreviations	xxiii
1 Introduction: Labour, Constitutional Change and European Policy	1 X
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 The nature and scope of the study	2
1.3 Institutional change	5
1.4 The process for developing and operationalising Labour policy on devolution	7
1.5 Devolution and European policy: powers and responsibilities	10
1.6 Summary	13
1.7 Structure of the report	13
2 Adapting to Europe: the Pre-Devolution Story	15
2.1 Introduction	15
2.2 Adapting to what? The sources of institutional change	16
2.3 Institutional change and European policy-making prior to devolution	18
2.4 The challenges posed by devolution	29
3 European Business and the Executives	33
3.1 Introduction	33
3.2 Establishing the new arrangements: July 1998–October 1999	36
3.3 Arrangements post-devolution	52
3.4 Conclusions	63

4	European Business and the Assemblies	71
4.1	Introduction	71
4.2	Parliamentary arrangements for handling EU business: the UK level	72
4.3	Preparing for devolution: July 1998–June 1999	77
4.4	Post-devolution: June 1999–February 2000	90
4.5	Conclusions	102
5	The Post-Devolution Governance of Rural and Environmental Affairs: Early Impressions	107
5.1	Introduction	107
5.2	Agriculture	108
5.3	Environmental policy	126
5.4	Conclusion: continuity or change?	131
6	Relations between the Devolved Administrations and the European Union	134
6.1	Introduction	134
6.2	Scotland	135
6.3	Wales	144
6.4	Conclusions	153
7	Conclusion	158
7.1	Introduction	158
7.2	The thinking underlying the changes in EU policy-making	163
7.3	Points of tension	166
7.4	Measuring change: a critical juncture?	170
7.5	Proposals for the further reform of European policy-making	173
	Notes	176
	Appendixes	193
×	Bibliography	211
	Index	216