Contents

Introduction vii

1. The Dark Clouds Forming: 1953–1979 1
   The Problem-Filled Structure 1
   The Stasi as Shielding Umbrella 19

   Schwerin 35
   Berlin 45

3. The Winds Rising: 1987 61
   Schwerin 61
   Berlin 71

4. The Lightning Striking: 1988 85
   Schwerin 85
   Berlin 105

5. The Storm Breaking: Spring 1989 127
   Schwerin 127
   Berlin 147

6. The Ground Shaking: Fall 1989 175
   Schwerin 175
   Berlin 194
Contents

   The MfS on the Brink 230
   The MfS by Another Name 232
   The More Things Change in the Secret Police . . . 235
   The Whimpering End 241
   The Fading Away of Old Agents 243
   The Reports of Death Are Premature 249
   The Revolution Abandons Its Revolutionaries 251

8. What We Learn from the Secret Police 257
   What They Tell of Themselves 257
   Of the Enormity of the Public’s Disaffection 258
   Of Discontents Like Those in the West 259
   The Accuracy of the Secret Police as Reporters and Analysts 260
   The Weaknesses of the Secret Police as Enforcers 262
   How Realities Defeated the Ideals 265
   The Secret Police as Dissidents 266
   The Secret Police as Rebels 267

Bibliography 271
Index 279