Contents

Preface vii

Introduction On Describing Ourselves Describing Ourselves: Comparatism, Differences, and Pluritopic Hermeneutics 1

PART 1. THE COLONIZATION OF LANGUAGES

Chapter 1 Nebrija in the New World: Renaissance Philosophy of Language and the Spread of Western Literacy 29

Chapter 2 The Materiality of Reading and Writing Cultures: The Chain of Sounds, Graphic Signs, and Sign Carriers 69

PART 2. THE COLONIZATION OF MEMORY

Chapter 3 Record Keeping without Letters and Writing Histories of People without History 125

Chapter 4 Genres as Social Practices: Histories, Enkyclopaideias, and the Limits of Knowledge and Understanding 171

PART 3. THE COLONIZATION OF SPACE

Chapter 5 The Movable Center: Ethnicity, Geometric Projections, and Coexisting Territorialities 219

Chapter 6 Putting the Americas on the Map: Cartography and the Colonization of Space 259

Afterword On Modernity, Colonization, and the Rise of Occidentalism 315

Notes 335

Bibliography 385

Index 415

Second Thoughts on The Darker Side of the Renaissance: Afterword to the Second Edition 427