Future Armies, Future Challenges

Land warfare in the information age

Edited by Michael Evans, Alan Ryan and Russell Parkin
Contents

Foreword Lieutenant General Peter Cosgrove v
Tables and figures ix
Abbreviations x
Contributors xii

Introduction: Appointment in Samarra: Western strategic thought and the culture of risk
Michael Evans 1

PART I: THE CHANGING SHAPE OF CONFLICT

1. The West's future foes: simplification and slaughter 17
   Lieutenant Colonel Ralph Peters
2. Clausewitz's chameleon: military theory and practice in the early 21st century 26
   Michael Evans
3. Resurrecting transformation for the post-industrial era 46
   Colonel Douglas A. Macgregor
4. Maritime strategy, land warfare and the revolution in naval affairs 64
   Rear Admiral Raja Menon
5. Sharp corners: combat operations in urban areas 82
   Roger Spiller
6. Land forces in 21st-century coalition operations: implications for the Asia-Pacific 96
   Alan Ryan
PART II: FUTURE CHALLENGES

7. Creating a culture of velocity: the Western military mindset and the challenge of digitisation
   Lieutenant Colonel Robert Leonhard
   129

8. Asymmetric warfare: myth or reality?
   Group Captain Ian MacFarling
   139

9. Whither the close battle—British Army operations: 2015 and beyond
   Colonel Richard Cousens
   158

10. A debate on the challenge posed by terrorism
    168

11. The military profession in Australia: crossroads and cross-purposes?
    Hugh Smith
    184

12. Defending the ‘other’: military force(s) and the cosmopolitan project
    Graeme Cheeseman
    216

13. Preparing the Australian Army for 21st-century conflict: problems and perspectives
    Major General Peter Abigail
    237

PART III: OPERATIONAL LESSONS

14. Lessons from Bosnia: a British perspective
    General Sir Michael Rose
    257

15. Lessons from East Timor
    Major General Duncan Lewis
    264

16. Lessons learnt from multinational operations
    Brigadier Dominique Trinquand
    282

Conclusion: Early 21st-century armies and the challenge of unrestricted warfare
   Alan Ryan
   293

Notes
   308

Bibliography
   340

Index
   358