Culture and Power at the Edges of the State

National support and subversion in European border regions
Contents

Acknowledgements vii

List of contributors ix

1. Territory, identity and the places in-between: Culture and power in European borderlands
   Thomas M. Wilson and Hastings Donnan 1

Part 1: States and their borders

2. Fidelity and betrayal in Trieste: Locating the ‘crisis of the state’
   Bjørn Thomassen 31

3. Mechanisms of boundary construction on the Greek-Turkish maritime border
   Jutta Lauth Bacas 55

4. Beyond Europeanization: A peripheral view of culture and the nation-state
   Dieter Haller 81

5. Natives, newcomers and others: Metalepsis of belonging in the borderland of Val Canale, Italy
   Irena Šumi 103

Part 2: Minority and majority identities at changing borders

   Ioannis Manos 127
7. Reopened and renegotiated borders: Pomak identities at the frontier between Bulgaria and Greece
   Dimitrina Mihaylova
   155

8. Narrating 'national' at the margins: Seto and Cossack identity in the Russian-Estonian borderlands
   Elena Nikiforova
   191

9. Myth, rhetoric and political relations at the Istrian border
   Lidija Nikočević
   229

Part 3: 'Bridging' borders in the European Union

10. To which state to belong? Ethnicity and citizenship at Russia’s new EU-borders
    Laura Assmuth
    255

11. Development, democracy and the New Europe in the Irish borderlands
    Paul Collinson
    289

12. New frontiers in a borderless Europe: The case of Bidasoa-Txingudi
    Zoe Bray
    321

Index
   349