

The Economics of War

Paul Poast

Mc
Graw
Hill McGraw-Hill
Irwin

Acknowledgements xi

Preface xiii

UNIT ONE: The Economic Impact of War

Chapter 1: The War Economy in Theory	3
1.1 Introduction	3
1.2 The Iron Law of War	3
1.2.1 War Scares People	3
1.2.2 War is Expensive	4
1.3 Four-Point Scheme for Evaluating the Economic Effects of War	5
1.3.1 Condition of the Economy Prior to the War	5
1.3.2 Location of the War	7
1.3.3 Duration, Budgetary Cost, and Financing of the War	8
1.3.4 Physical and Labor Resource Mobilization	11
1.4 Key Points	16
Chapter 2: The War Economy in Reality: Case Studies of Major U.S. Wars	18
2.1 Introduction	18
2.2 Cases That Support the Iron Law of War	18
2.2.1 World War I (1917–1918)	18
2.2.2 World War II (1941–1945)	22
2.2.3 Korea (1950–1953)	28
2.3 Cases That Do Not Support the Iron Law of War	30
2.3.1 Vietnam (1964–1973)	30
2.3.2 1991 Persian Gulf (1990–1991)	38
2.3.3 Iraq (2003–present)	40
2.4 Key Points	44

UNIT TWO: Military Economics

Chapter 3: Defense Spending and the Economy	49
3.1 Introduction	49
3.2 U.S. Military Expenditures	49
3.2.1 Military Expenditures Compared to Other Government Expenditures	49
3.2.2 Composition of the Defense Budget	51
3.3 U.S. Military Expenditures and Macroeconomic Performance: The Costs of Disarmament	55
3.3.1 Disarmament's Costs in Theory	55
3.3.2 Evidence of Disarmament's Cost:	56

3.4	U.S. Military Expenditures and Macroeconomic Performance: The Benefits of Disarmament	59
3.4.1	Disarmament's Benefits in Theory	59
3.4.2	Evidence of Disarmament's Benefit	61
3.5	Global Military Expenditures	65
3.5.1	International Comparisons	65
3.5.2	Macroeconomic Impact of Military Expenditures: International Comparisons	69
3.6	Exploring the Causes of Militarization	70
3.6.1	Modeling the Security Dilemma	70
3.6.2	Modeling the Economic Impact of an Arms Race	71
3.7	Key Points	75

Chapter 4: Military Labor 77

4.1	Introduction	77
4.2	Comparing Military Manpower	77
4.3	All-volunteer Force (AVF) vs. Conscription	79
4.3.1	Graphing the Military Labor Market	80
4.3.2	Budgetary Cost and Capital Intensity	81
4.3.3	The Labor Demand Curve as the Marginal Productivity of Labor	84
4.3.4	The Labor Supply Curve as the Willingness to Join	85
4.3.5	Conscription and Opportunity Cost	85
4.3.6	The Inefficiencies of Conscription	85
4.4	Case Study: The Vietnam Transition from Conscription to an AVF	86
4.4.1	Background	86
4.4.2	The Typical Vietnam War Service Member	87
4.4.3	Pressures to End the Draft	88
4.4.4	Summary	91
4.5	U.S. Military Compensation: Is It Enough?	91
4.5.1	Military Pay	91
4.5.2	Military Benefits	94
4.6	Private Military Companies/Forces (PMC/PMF)	96
4.6.1	The Growth of PMCs	97
4.6.2	PMCs and Efficiency Wages	98
4.6.3	Controversies Surrounding PMCs	100
4.7	Key Points	102

Chapter 5: Weapons Procurement 105

5.1	Introduction	105
5.2	Overview of the Arms Market	105
5.3	The Domestic Weapons Market	106
5.3.1	Department of Defense as a Monopsony	107
5.3.2	Simplifying the Analysis	107
5.3.3	Bilateral Monopoly	109
5.3.4	The Contract Zone, Firm Diversification, and Higher Prices	110
5.3.5	Principal-Agent Model	111
5.3.6	Contract Type	113
5.3.7	Dead Weight Loss and Externalities	114
5.4	The Global Weapons Market	117
5.4.1	Growth of the Global Arms Market	117

5.4.2	Analyzing the Global Arms Market	119
5.5	Case Study: The Joint Strike Fighter	122
5.5.1	The Project	122
5.5.2	The Bidding Process	122
5.5.3	The Final Bid	123
5.6	Key Points	124

UNIT THREE: The Economics of Security Issues

Chapter 6:	Civil Wars in the Developing World	129
6.1	Introduction	129
6.2	Economic Consequences Of Civil Wars	131
6.2.1	Conflict Duration	132
6.2.2	Impact on GDP and Government Services	132
6.2.3	Spillover Effects	133
6.3	Economic Causes of Civil Wars	133
6.3.1	Poverty as a Cause	133
6.3.2	Resources as a Cause	134
6.3.3	Greed as a Cause	135
6.3.4	Ethnic Dominance as a Cause	136
6.3.5	Inequality as a Cause	137
6.4	Small Arms Transfers to the Developing World	138
6.4.1	The Supply of AK-47s	138
6.4.2	The Demand for AK-47s	139
6.4.3	Global Equilibrium and Implications	139
6.5	Case Studies of Conflict and Underdevelopment in Africa	140
6.5.1	Sierra Leone	141
6.5.2	Sudan	142
6.5.3	Lessons from the Case Studies	144
6.6	Peace Operations: An Economically Inefficient Response?	145
6.6.1	Expansion of Peacekeeping Operations	145
6.6.2	Peacekeeping as a Public Good	147
6.6.3	Marginal Cost/ Marginal Benefits of Peacekeeping	148
6.7	Key Points	150
Chapter 7:	Terrorism	153
7.1	Introduction	153
7.2	Definition of Terrorism	153
7.3	Incidents and Trends in International Terrorism	154
7.3.1	Substitution Effect	155
7.3.2	Rise of Religious Radicalism	156
7.4	Is Terrorism Rational?	156
7.4.1	Motivations to Join or Form a Terrorist Group	156
7.4.2	Modeling the Choice of Terrorism	157
7.4.3	Is Suicide Bombing Rational?	159
7.5	Terrorist Financing	162
7.5.1	Multiple Sources	163
7.5.2	Multiple Transfer Methods	165
7.5.3	Case Study: The Hawala Network	165

Contents

7.6	Economic Impact Of Terrorism	167
7.6.1	Macroeconomic Level	167
7.6.2	Microeconomic Level	169
7.6.3	International Trade	171
7.7	Key Points	171
Chapter 8:	Weapons of Mass Destruction Proliferation	174
8.1	Introduction	174
8.2	Overview of Chemical, Biological, and Nuclear Weapons	174
8.2.1	Types of WMD	174
8.2.2	Why Focus on Nuclear Weapons?	178
8.3	Basics of Producing Nuclear Weapons Material	178
8.3.1	Highly Enriched Uranium	179
8.3.2	Plutonium	180
8.4	Demand for Nuclear Weapons	180
8.4.1	Security Dilemma Hypothesis	180
8.4.2	“More Bang for the Buck” Substitution Effect	182
8.5	Supply Of Nuclear Weapons	182
8.5.1	Nuclear Bartering	184
8.5.2	Bartering and Gains from Trade	185
8.5.3	Acquiring Revenue	186
8.6	Treaties: An Effective Response?	193
8.6.1	Treaties in Theory	193
8.6.2	Treaties in Reality: The Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty	194
8.7	Key Points	195

References 199

Index 209