THE NATION OF THE OTHER:
Constructions of Nation in Contemporary
Cultural and Literary Discourses

Edited by
Anna Branach-Kallas
and Katarzyna Więckowska

Wydawnictwo Uniwersytetu Mikołaja Kopernika
TORUŃ 2004
Contents

Introduction .................................................................................................................. 7

PART ONE

MAPPING THE NATION: NATIONS AND THEIR OTHERS ........................................... 11

Maria S. Topalova
Victims versus Terrorists: the Media and the Experience of Insurgent Terrorism in Greece (1975–2000) ................................................................. 13

Marek Jeziński
Excluding the Other: the Concept of the Nation in Contemporary Political Discourse in Poland ................................................................................................. 25

Agnieszka Pantuchowicz
Miscarriage or the Birth of a New Nation? Silesian Nationalism and Gender ................................................................................................................................. 37

Sadan Jha
The Mythic (Non)presence of the Other in the Text of Indian Nation-ness ................................................................. 45

Souad Eddouada
Gender and the Concept of the Nation within the Context of the Moroccan Family Code ............................................................................................................. 57

Tomasz Sikora
Queering the Heterosexist Fantasy of the Nation ......................................................... 65

Lenore Lyons
Sexing the Nation: Normative Heterosexuality and the “Good” Singaporean Citizen ......................................................................................................................... 79
Natalia Monakhova, Nataliya Nagorna
Lesbian Identity within Neonationalist Discourse:
The Case of Ukraine ................................................................. 97

Margarita Zakovorotnaya
Search for the Other in the Period of “Chaotic Individualism” ................................................................. 109

PART TWO

RE-MAPPING THE NATION: NATIONAL (HI)STORIES ........................................... 119

Mary Conde
The Imaginary Caribbean ............................................................. 121

Arthur Redding
Invisibilities: the Cultural Production of Counternational Identities in American Literature ............................................. 129

Anna Branach-Kallas
Travelling in-between: the Nation and the Diaspora in Meera Syal’s Anita and Me ................................................................. 139

Piotr Sadkowski
Questioning National Identities: the “Wars of Languages” in Les Têtes à Papineau by Jacques Godbout and Le Siège de Bruxelles by Jacques Neirynck ..................................................... 149

Annedith M. Schneider
A Community of Their Own? Citizens and “Sisters” in Algeria ........ 159

Hanita Brand
Housing the Other: Israeli Counter-Narratives and Their Construction of the Notions of Home and House ............................................. 171

Notes on Contributors .................................................................. 187