Leading to the 2003 Iraq War

The Global Media Debate

Edited by

Alexander G. Nikolaev

and

Ernest A. Hakanen

Palgrave Macmillan
CONTENTS

List of Graphs and Tables vii

Introduction 1
Ernest A. Hakanen and Alexander G. Nikolaev

Part I The English-Speaking Western Alliance—America, Great Britain, and Australia

The United States
1. A Debate Delayed Is a Debate Denied: U.S. News Media before the 2003 War with Iraq 11
William A. Dorman

2. Strange Bedfellows: The Emergence of the Al Qaeda–Baathist News Frame Prior to the 2003 Invasion of Iraq 23
W. Lucas Robinson and Steven Livingston

Ronald Bishop

4. Their Morals Are Ours: The American Media on the Doctrine of “Preemptive War” 65
Marilyn G. Piety and Brian J. Foley

The United Kingdom

5. Postmodern War on Iraq 85
Philip Hammond

6. Orientalism Revisited: The British Media and the Iraq War 97
Judith Brown

Australia

7. The War in Iraq: A View from Australia 115
Daniela V. Dimitrova
Part II  The Global Debate

Europe

8. Le Monde on a “Likely” Iraq War 129
Anne-Marie Obajie-Kirkwood

Simone Schlichting-Artur

The Middle East

10. Sheer and Opaque Screens: The Medical Ethnography of Arabic Television, a Phenomenological Quandary of Communal Memory, Suffering, and Resistance 165
Iman Roushdy-Hammady

11. American Crisis–Israeli Narrative: The Role of Media Discourse in the Promotion of a War Agenda 181
Lea Mandelzis and Chanan Naveh

Eurasia

12. Why The Russians Did Not Support the 2003 Iraq War: A Frame Analysis of the Russian Television Coverage of the Coming of the War in Iraq 197
Alexander G. Nikolaev

13. Clashing World Views: Coverage of the Prewar Iraqi Crisis in the Chinese Press 223
Louis Mangione

Across the Globe

14. The Coverage of Debates on the Iraq War: The Case of Zimbabwe 239
Stenford Matenda

15. Turn on, Tune in: Language of War in Iraq (Chile, Mexico, and Spain) 249
Mariadelaluz Matus-Mendoza

Notes on Contributors 265
Bibliography 269
Index 281