

Rational Choice

A/453025

Andrew Hindmoor

Contents

List of Boxes, Figures and Tables	x
Preface	xii
1 Introduction	1
The marginal revolution and the methods of economics (1870–1950)	6
The emergence of rational choice (1950–70)	7
The take-off to growth (1970–94)	9
A difficult decade (1994–2004)	14
2 Anthony Downs and the Spatial Theory of Party Competition	22
Setting the stage: the demands of democracy	22
The precursors of party competition	24
The median voter theorem	26
Qualifying the argument: accounting for divergence	30
Assumption 1: there are only two parties	32
Assumption 2: political space is one-dimensional	34
Assumption 3: parties can move to and occupy any point in this one-dimensional space	39
Assumption 4: parties are vote-maximizers	40
Assumption 5: voters vote for the party closest to them in political space	41
Assumption 6: there is perfect information	42
Assumption 7: voters' preferences are fixed	44
Assessment	45
3 William Riker and the Theory of Coalitions	49
Setting the stage: choosing a voting system	49
Riker and the theory of the minimal-winning coalition	53
Policy-seeking parties	57
The portfolio-allocation model	62
The transaction costs of policy agreements	65
Assessment	73

4	Kenneth Arrow and Social Choice Theory	77
	Setting the stage: democracy and the public will	77
	The precursors of social choice theory	79
	Arrow: social choice and individual values	83
	Riker: liberalism against populism	86
	Reining-in social choice theory	90
	Assessment	100
5	Mancur Olson and the Logic of Collective Action	102
	Olson's The Logic of Collective Action	102
	Resolving collective action problems	113
	Assessment	127
6	William Niskanen and Bureaucracy	129
	Setting the stage: the growth of the state	129
	The precursors of bureaucratic theory	131
	The budget-maximizing bureaucrat	136
	Evaluating the behavioural assumption	143
	Evaluating the equilibrium argument	146
	Assessment	151
7	Gordon Tullock, Rent-Seeking and Constitutions	155
	Setting the stage: the politics of pressure	155
	Rent-seeking: the welfare costs of tariffs, monopolies and theft	157
	The costs of rent-seeking	163
	Reforming the rent-seeking society	171
	Devising and enforcing constitutions	174
	Assessment	178
8	Rationality	181
	Introduction	181
	The axiomatic approach	183
	The optimizing approach	190
	The reach of rational choice	193
	Self-interest	195

9 Rational Choice Explanation	200
Introduction	200
Positivism and explanation through laws	202
All other things being equal: tendency laws and the inexact (social) sciences	205
Scientific realism and the search for mechanisms	210
Interpretivism, understanding and reasons	212
Bibliography	219
Index	247