Table of Contents

Table of Contents..................................................................................................................v
Preface to the Series and Acknowledgments.................................................................vii

Part I

The Development of Hungarian Political Ambitions before the Second Vienna Award

_Honvéd_ Chief of the General Staff Henrik Werth and the Hungarian Military Policy.................................................................3

Differences in Foreign Political and Defense Issues between the Government and the General Staff: Teleki’s and Werth’s Discord..............................................................24

The German–Polish Conflict and the Impact of the War on the Hungarian Military Plans.......55

The Hungarian Military Requests Germany to Help Reclaim Transylvania.............................85

The Impact of the German Western Blitzkrieg: Hungary Becomes more Pro-German............108

Mobilization and Deployment against Romania: The Second Vienna Award..........................132

Part II

Hungary Enters World War II

Antagonism between the Military Leadership and the Government Regarding the Further Development of Military Policy......209

German Training Units in Transit across Hungary to Romania...232

The Growing German Military and Political Influence............................240
The German Army Prepares for War against the Soviet Union and Ignores the Hungarian General Staff..........................253
Joining Germany's Attack on Yugoslavia.................................................266
The Hungarian Military Command
  Offers Its Services to the Germans...............................................307
Offensive against the Soviet Union..................................................330

Part III
The Failure of the New Hungarian Military Political Experiment

Colonel General Ferenc Szombathelyi at the Head of the General Staff:
  An Attempt to Create a New Hungarian Military Policy..................355
German–Hungarian Discussions:
  Putting the 2nd Hungarian Army at Germany's Disposal.................384
The Hungarian–Romanian Discord Intensifies: Aspirations to Retain Power in the Case of an Anti-Romanian Action.........397
A Radical Turning Point in the Course of the War:
  The Destruction of the 2nd Hungarian Army.................................419
Failed Attempts to Break away and the Military Command...........439
Hungary's Occupation.........................................................................507
The Regent's Unsuccessful Attempt to Stabilize His Regime and to Break away from the War:
  The Failure of the October 15, 1944, Proclamation......................539

Bibliography..........................................................................................553
The Author............................................................................................557
Biographies..........................................................................................559
Name Index...........................................................................................581
Place Index...........................................................................................587
Maps by Béla Nagy..............................................................................591
Volumes Published in “Atlantic Studies on Society in Change”......599