The Diplomatic Corps as an Institution of International Society

Edited by

Paul Sharp
Professor and Head of Political Science
University of Minnesota Duluth, USA

and

Geoffrey Wiseman
Professor of the Practice of International Relations and Public Diplomacy
University of Southern California, USA
Contents

_Acknowledgements_ ix
_Notes on Contributors_ x
_Foreword_ xi
_Adam Watson_
_Introduction_ 1
_James Mayall_

Part I
_The Diplomatic Corps from the Past to the Present: Historical and Conceptual Background_ 13

1 _The Origins of the Diplomatic Corps: Rome to Constantinople_ 15
_G. R. Berridge_

2 _The Diplomatic Corps as a Symbol of Diplomatic Culture_ 31
_Sasson Sofer_

Part II
_The Diplomatic Corps as a Settled Affair_ 39

3 _The Washington Diplomatic Corps: The Place, the Professionals, and their Performance_ 41
_Alan K. Henrikson_

4 _The London Diplomatic Corps_ 75
_Peter Lyon_

5 _The Emergence and Practices of the Oslo Diplomatic Corps_ 83
_Halvard Leira and Iver B. Neumann_

Part III
_The Diplomatic Corps Recalled by Practitioners_ 103

_J. E. Hoare_

7 _Representing India in the Diplomatic Corps_ 125
_Kishan S. Rana_
Contents

Part IV  The Diplomatic Corps in Action

8  The Kathmandu Diplomatic Corps: In Search of a Role in Times of Transformation
   M. Humayun Kabir
   145

9  Genocide in Rwanda and the Kigali Diplomatic Corps: Consultation, Cooperation, Coordination
   Joyce E. Leader
   168

10  The Skopje Diplomatic Corps and the Macedonian Political Crisis of 2001
    Paul Sharp
    197

Part V  The Future of the Diplomatic Corps

11  A European Epistemic Community of Diplomats
    Mai‘a Keapuolani Davis Cross
    223

    Geoffrey Wiseman
    246

13  Conclusion: The Diplomatic Corps’ Role in Constituting International Society
    Paul Sharp and Geoffrey Wiseman
    265

Index
278