Theory and Practice of International Mediation
Selected essays

Jacob Bercovitch
Contents

Preface xii
Acknowledgements of permission xiv

1 Introduction: or how to study and do research on mediation 1
  Introduction 1
  Perspectives on the study of mediation 2
  Towards a framework of mediation 5
  The contingency approach 8
  Overview of approach 10

PART I
The nature and theory of mediation 13

2 Introduction: putting mediation in context 15
  Introduction 15
  The nature of mediation 16
  Motives for mediation 19
  Who may mediate? 21
  Mediators' roles and behaviour 25
  Evaluating international mediation 27
  Towards more effective mediation 29
  Conclusion 31

3 The study of international mediation: theoretical issues and empirical evidence (with Allison Houston) 35
  Introduction 35
  The nature of international mediation 35
  Studying for effective mediation 37
4 Social research and the study of mediation: designing and implementing systemic archival research
Introduction 53
Experimental and case study approaches 54
Archival data analysis: some possible benefits 55
Describing the data set 56
Coding the data 58
Some findings 59
Conclusion 62

5 Mediation in international conflicts: theory, practice and development
Mediation: towards a definition 66
The incidence of mediation 70
The study of international mediation 71
The motives for mediation 72
The mediator’s roles and behaviour 75
Who may mediate? 78
Towards more effective mediation 82
Evaluating international mediation 85
Conclusion 87

6 Mediation success or failure: the search for the elusive criteria
Introduction 93
Conflict management and mediation 93
Categories for success: from abstract to concrete 94
Settlement or resolution: which is more successful? 97
Mediator conceptions of goals and success 99
Factors affecting mediation success 100
Conclusion 101
PART II
Case studies in mediation 105

7 A case study of mediation as a method of international conflict resolution: the Camp David experience 107

Mediation in international conflict 107
Towards a model of mediation 108
Antecedent phase 116
Concurrent phase 121
Consequent phase 127
Conclusion 128

8 Conflict management and the Oslo experience: assessing the success of Israeli–Palestinian peacemaking 133

Introduction 133
A single case study? 133
Intractable conflicts and their management 135
Determinants of successful mediation 136
Context 138
The Oslo process 140
Conclusion 147

PART III
Quantitative studies in mediation 151

9 Negotiation or mediation? An exploration of factors affecting the choice of conflict management in international conflict (with Richard Jackson) 153

Characteristics of negotiation and mediation 154
Studying the choice of negotiation or mediation 156
A new approach to negotiation and mediation? 158
Data and methods 160
Empirical results 161
Issues 162
Nature of the dispute 163
Nature of the parties 165
Conclusion 167
10 Why do they do it like this? An analysis of the factors influencing mediation behaviour in international conflicts (with Allison Houston) 172

Introduction 172
The contingency approach to mediation analysis 173
Mediator behaviour in conflict management 176
Mediator strategies 177
Contextual influences on mediation behaviour 178
Influence of the pre-existing conflict context on mediation behaviour 179
The concurrent mediation context 182
The background mediation context 185
Research design 187
Results 191
Conclusion 200

PART IV
Current issues in mediation research 207

11 Managing internationalized ethnic conflict: evaluating the role and relevance of mediation 209

The changing nature of conflict 209
Ethnic conflicts 210
Characteristics of internationalized ethnic conflict 212
Parties and issues in internationalized ethnic conflict 216
Managing internationalized ethnic conflict 218
Research design and analysis 221
Conclusion 225

12 Culture and international mediation: an empirical assessment (with Ole Elgström) 228

Introduction 228
The complexity of culture 229
Culture in international relations 230
The influence of culture 232
Culture and mediation 235
Research design 237
Conclusions 240
13 The management and termination of intractable international conflicts: conceptual and empirical considerations (with Paul Diehl and Gary Goertz)

Introduction 247
The danger of intractable conflicts 249
Conflict management and conflict resolution in enduring rivalries 250
Managing intractable conflicts 253
Resolving or terminating enduring rivalries 255
Conclusion 259

14 Preventing deadly conflicts: the contribution of international mediation

International/ internal conflict 263
From conflict management to conflict prevention 265
Towards conflict prevention 266
Mediation and conflict prevention 268
What is effective mediation? 269
Conflict parties 271
The conflict context 272
Mediation behaviour 273
Conclusion 275

Index

279