Contemporary Spanish cinema and genre

Edited by

JAY BECK AND
VICENTE RODRÍGUEZ ORTEGA

Manchester
University Press

Manchester and New York

distributed in the United States exclusively by Palgrave Macmillan
Contents

Acknowledgements vii
Contributors ix
Foreword  Robert Sklar xiv

Introduction  Jay Beck and Vicente Rodríguez Ortega 1

Part I  Industry, marketing and film culture

1. The Fantastic Factory: the horror genre and contemporary Spanish cinema  Andrew Willis 27
2. Trailing the Spanish auteur: Almodóvar's, Amenábar's and de la Iglesia's generic routes in the US market  Vicente Rodríguez Ortega 44
3. ‘Now playing everywhere’: Spanish horror film in the marketplace  Antonio Lázaro-Reboll 65

Part II  Generic hybridity: negotiating the regional, the national and the transnational

4. From Sevilla to the world: the transnational and transgeneric initiative of La Zanfona Producciones  Josetxo Cerdán and Miguel Fernández Labayen 87
5. Justino, un asesino de la tercera edad: Spanishness, dark comedy and horror  Juan F. Egea 107
6. Tracing the past, dealing with the present: notes on the political thriller in contemporary Spanish cinema  Vicente J. Benet 122
7. Selling out Spain: screening capital and culture in  Airbag and Smoking Room  William J. Nichols 133
Contents

Part III  Genre and authorship

8  The transvestite figure and film noir: Pedro Almodóvar’s transnational imaginary  Carla Marcantonio  157

9  Caressing the text: episodic erotics and generic structures in Ventura Pons’s ‘Minimalist Trilogy’  David Scott Diffrient  179

10  Horror of allegory: The Others and its contexts  Ernesto R. Acevedo-Muñoz  202

11  Love, loneliness and laundromats: affect and artifice in the melodramas of Isabel Coixet  Belén Vidal  219

Part IV  Multilingual imaginaries, borderless Spain

12  Dancing with ‘Spanishness’: Hollywood codes and the site of memory in the contemporary film musical  Pietsie Feenstra  241

13  Immigration films: communicating conventions of (in)visibility in contemporary Spain  Maria Van Liew  259

14  Spanish-Cuban co-productions: tourism, transnational romance and anxieties of authenticity  Mariana Johnson  279

Index  297