

Democratization

Christian W. Haerpfer

Patrick Bernhagen

Ronald F. Inglehart

Christian Welzel

Brief Contents

About the Editors	xxix
About the Contributors	xxx
1 Introduction	1
Christian W. Haerpfer, Patrick Bernhagen, Ronald F. Inglehart, and Christian Welzel
Approaches to the Study of Democratization	4
Plan of the Book	5

Part One: Theoretical and Historical Perspectives

2 Democratic and Undemocratic States	10
Richard Rose
Introduction	10
Defining Democratic States	11
The State of States Today	13
Evolution, False Starts, and Democratization Backwards	17
Dynamics of Democratic and Undemocratic States	19
Conclusion	21
3 Measuring Democracy and Democratization	24
Patrick Bernhagen
Introduction	24
Is Democracy a Matter of Degree?	25
Measuring Democracy	28
Hybrid Regimes and Sub-types of Democracy	37
Conclusion	38
4 Long Waves and Conjunctures of Democratization	41
Dirk Berg-Schlosser
Introduction	41
The Overall Picture	43
The First Long Wave, 1776–1914	45
The First Positive Conjuncture, 1918–19	46

	The Second Long Wave (with some intermittent turbulences), 1945–88	48
	The Latest Conjuncture, 1989–90	49
	Conclusion	51
5	The Global Wave of Democratization	55
	John Markoff (with Amy White)
	Introduction	55
	Democracy Ascending	56
	National, Regional, and Global Processes	62
	Conclusion	69
6	Theories of Democratization	74
	Christian Welzel
	Introduction	74
	The Nature and Origin of Democracy	75
	Social Divisions, Distributional Equality, and Democratization	78
	Colonial Legacies, Religious Traditions, and Democracy	80
	Modernization and Democratization	80
	International Conflicts, Regime Alliances, and Democratization	81
	Elite Pacts, Mass Mobilization, and Democratization	82
	State Repression and Democratizing Mass Pressures	83
	Institutional Configurations and Democracy	86
	The Human Empowerment Path to Democracy	86
	A Typology of Democratization Processes	87
	Conclusion	88

Part Two: Causes and Dimensions of Democratization

7	The International Context	92
	Hakan Yilmaz
	Introduction	92
	The International Context of Democratization: Theoretical Approaches	93
	Democracy Promotion Strategies of the USA and the European Union	96
	Globalization, Global Civil Society, and Democratization	100
	Conclusion	103

8	Democracy, Business, and the Economy	107
	Patrick Bernhagen
	Introduction	107
	Capitalism and Democracy: The Historical Connection	109
	What Capitalism Does for Democracy	112
	What Democracy Does for Business	116
	The Role of Business Actors in Democratic Transition	119
	Political and Economic Reform	121
	Conclusion	123
9	Political Culture, Mass Beliefs, and Value Change	126
	Christian Welzel and Ronald F. Inglehart
	Introduction	127
	The Role of Mass Beliefs in Democratization Literature	128
	Mass Demands for Democracy	129
	Regime Legitimacy	131
	Economic Performance and Regime Legitimacy	133
	The Congruence Thesis	134
	Are Emancipative Values Caused by Democracy?	136
	Explaining Democratic Change	138
	The Role of Religion	141
	Conclusion	143
10	Gender and Democratization	145
	Pamela Paxton
	Introduction	145
	Gender in Definitions of Democracy	146
	Women's Democratic Representation: Formal, Descriptive, and Substantive Representation	148
	Women's Suffrage as an Aspect of Democratization	150
	Women's Representation as an Aspect of Democracy	152
	Women and Democratization Movements	154
	Conclusion	155

11	Social Capital and Civil Society	158
	Natalia Letki
	Introduction	158
	Defining Civil Society and Social Capital	159
	Civil Society and Social Capital in Democratization	160
	Paradoxes of Civil Society and Social Capital in New Democracies	163
	Civil Society, Social Capital, and Democracy: A Western Perspective?	166
	Conclusion	167

Part Three: Actors and Institutions

12	Social Movement, Trade Unions, and Advocacy Networks	172
	Federico M. Rossi and Donatella della Porta
	Introduction	172
	Social Movements in Research on Democratization	173
	The Role of 'Democratization from Below': Perspectives from Social Movement Studies	177
	Conclusion	182
13	Conventional Citizen Participation	186
	Ian McAllister and Stephen White
	Introduction	186
	Dimensions of Political Participation	187
	Election Turnout	191
	Institutions and Political Participation	193
	Citizens and Political Participation	195
	Conclusion	197
14	Political Parties	201
	Leonardo Morlino
	Introduction	201
	Are Parties an Essential Component of Democracy?	202
	Are Parties the Key Actors of Transition? Are there Alternative Actors?	204
	How Do Parties Anchor a Democracy?	209
	When Do Parties Fail?	214
	Conclusion	214

15	Electoral Systems and Institutional Design in New Democracies	219
	Matthijs Bogaards
	Introduction	220
	Institutional Design	220
	Duverger's and Sartori's Electoral Laws	221
	The Party System as Independent Variable	222
	Mixed Electoral Systems	223
	The Dependent Variable I: Counting Parties	224
	The Dependent Variable II: Party Systems	224
	Additional Variables: Cleavages and Presidentialism	225
	The State of the Art	226
	The Evidence from New Democracies	227
	Electoral System Design and Ethnic Conflict Management	228
	Consociational Democracy	230
	Conclusion	231
16	The Media	234
	Katrin Voltmer and Gary Rawnsley
	Introduction	234
	International Media, Communication Technologies, and Democratization	236
	Media-State Relationships	238
	The Media and the Market	242
	Journalistic Professionalism and the Quality of Reporting	243
	Conclusion	245
17	Failed Democratization	249
	M. Steven Fish and Jason Wittenberg
	Introduction	249
	Categorizing Countries	250
	What Undermines Democracy?	252
	Who Undermines Democracy?	256
	What Can Be Done?	260
	Conclusion	263

Part Four: Regions of Democratization

18	Southern Europe	268
	Richard Gunther
	Introduction	268
	Portugal	269
	Greece	272
	Spain	275
	Explaining Democratization in Southern Europe	280
	Conclusion	286
19	Latin America	290
	Andrea Oelsner and Mervyn Bain
	Introduction	290
	Historical Overview	291
	The International Context	294
	Economic Factors	296
	Political Culture and Society	298
	Political Parties and Social Movements	301
	Institutional Challenges	303
	Conclusion	306
20	Post-Communist Europe and Post-Soviet Russia	309
	Christian W. Haerpfer
	Introduction	309
	Decline and Failed Reforms of Communist Regimes, 1970–88	311
	End of Communist Political Regimes, 1989–91	312
	Creation of New Democracies	313
	From New Democracies towards Consolidated Democracies	314
	From New Democracies towards Electoral Democracies	316
	From New Democracies towards Autocracies	317
	Conclusion	318

21	The Middle East and North Africa	321
	Francesco Cavatorta
	Introduction	321
	Authoritarian Persistence in the Arab World	323
	The International Context	325
	Political Culture and Society	327
	Business and the Economy	330
	Agents of Democratization and Democratic Failure	332
	Institutional Challenges	335
	Conclusion	336
22	Sub-Saharan Africa	339
	Michael Bratton
	Introduction	339
	Africa's Democratic Wave	340
	Key Cases of Regime Transition	343
	Explanatory Factors	346
	Institutional Challenges	350
	Conclusion	353
23	East Asia	356
	Doh Chull Shin and Rollin F. Tusalem
	Introduction	356
	East Asia as a Region of Democratization	357
	Democratic Transition	360
	Substantive Democratization	366
	Prospects of Democratization in China and Singapore	369
	Conclusion	373

24	Conclusions and Outlook: The Future of Democratization	377
	Christian W. Haerpfer, Patrick Bernhagen, Ronald F. Inglehart, and Christian Welzel
	Tactical and Strategic Factors	378
	Developmental Factors	380
	External Threats and Group Hostilities as Impediments to Democracy	380
	An Evolutionary Perspective	381
	The Democratic Agenda of the Future	383
	Spreading Democracy to New Regions	383
	Consolidating and Improving New Democracies	384
	Deepening Old Democracies	384
	Glossary	386
	Bibliography	390
	Index	412