Contents

List of Tables
ix
List of Abbreviations
xi
Preface
 xv

1 Conceptualizing State Participation and Resistance with Multilateral Treaty Regimes
1
   - Analytical Case Studies
   - Domestic Politics and Treaty Participation
   - Realist International Relations Theory and Interstate Cooperation
   - Multilateralism as a Loose System of Global Governance
   - Foreign Policy Behavior of the Democracies
   - Integrating Domestic and International Politics

2 Probing the Organizational Structure of Treaty Regimes and its Influence on Participation and Resistance
29
   - Evolution of Multilateral Treaties
   - Participation in Treaties
   - Why States Join Treaties
   - Consent with Treaties and State Participation
   - Participation in Treaties and Levels of Consent
   - Resistance to Participation in Treaties
   - Domestic Political Structure as a Source of Participation and Resistance
   - Identifying Domestic Social Norms
   - Cross-National Analysis of Treaty Ratification
   - Global Environmental Treaties

3 State Participation in Multilateral Environmental and Security Regimes
53
   - Multilateral Treaties
   - Data on Domestic Polities
   - Multilateral Environmental Treaty Regimes
   - Choice of MEAs for Treaty Participation Analysis
Contents

United States and CEDAW 195
Reasons for US Opposition to CEDAW 197
Proposed US Reservations, Understandings, and Declarations for CEDAW 201
United States Participation in CEDAW—An Assessment 202
Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court 204
United States and the International Criminal Court 206
United States Participation in International Human Rights Regimes 209

6 The Case of China 213

Notions of Law and Order in Imperial China: Confucianism and Legalism 216
Individual Rights in the Chinese Legal Tradition 217
Legal Codes of Imperial China: Legalized Confucianism 219
Imperial China, Western Powers, and International Law: The Manchu Period 222
Legal Reforms: The Republican and the Nationalist Eras 225
People's Republic of China: Rule by Man Over Rule by Law 227
The Concept of Individual Rights in Revolutionary China 230
Communist China and International Law 232
Economic Reform and China’s Participation in Human Rights Conventions 234
Human Rights and Rule of Law: International Pressure Linkages 239
Saving Face and Cultural Sensitivity to Foreign Criticism 240
Political Order and Human Rights in Post-Revolutionary China 243
Reforms and Social Stability—Strike Hard Campaigns and the Death Penalty 246
Arrest, Arbitrary Detention, and Suppression of Dissent 252
Torture, Ill-Treatment, and Coercive Extraction of Confessions 254
Repression and Control of Religious Activities 258
Conclusion 260

7 State Resistance and Participation in Treaty Regimes:

A Macro-Assessment 265

Bibliography 277

Index 315