The Domestic Sources of China’s Foreign Policy
Regimes, leadership, priorities, and process

Hongyi Lai
List of illustrations ix
Preface x
Acknowledgments xii
Acronyms and abbreviations xiii

PART I
Analytical framework 1

1 Introduction: bringing back domestic politics in studies of foreign policy 3

2 Internal sources of external policy: an analytical framework 19

PART II
Cases of China's foreign policy 43

3 Domestic regimes and leaders' vision: relations with Southeast Asia 45

4 Leadership succession, priority, debates, and shocks: WTO accession 64

5 Managing domestic-external interaction: China-US WTO agreement 90

6 Securing strategic resources for domestic economy – oil diplomacy 112

7 Institutions and players – diversified policy making process 134
viii  Contents

PART III
Conclusion  157

8 Understanding a rising China  159

Notes  170
Index  196