

Linga-Bibliothek

Linga A/907426

MOTHER INDIA'S SHADOW OVER EL DORADO

Indo-Guyanese Politics and Identity,
1890s–1930s

Clem Seecharan

IAN RANDLE PUBLISHERS

Kingston • Miami

(2010)

Contents

List of Illustrations / ix

Acknowledgements / xi

Abbreviations / xii

Introduction Framing the Indo-Guyanese Narrative:
'Many Indias' in El Dorado / 1

Part 1: The Shaping of the Indo-Guyanese People, 1890s–1918

Chapter 1 Amnesia and Myth in the Making of the Past / 15

Chapter 2 Indology and the Awakening of India / 29

Chapter 3 India's Awakening and the Imagining of the 'East Indian Nation' in British Guiana, 1890s–1918 / 46

Chapter 4 India's War Effort and Indo-Guyanese Identity with the Empire, 1914–19 / 61

Part 2: Finding a Voice: The British Guiana East Indian Association, 1916–25

Chapter 5 The Origin of Indian Politics in British Guiana / 73

Chapter 6 The 1916 Political Watershed: The Egerton Recall / 80

Chapter 7 Finding Their Feet: The General Elections of 1916 / 88

Chapter 8 The 1916 Watershed and its Aftermath: The British Guiana East
Indian Association and Factionalism, 1919–25 / 93

Chapter 9 Indians and the Franchise: Embracing the Representative Principle, 1921–25 / 103

Part 3: The British Guiana Colonisation Scheme, 1919–29: An 'Indian Colony' Aborted?

Chapter 10 The Origin of the Colonisation Scheme and Local Responses, 1919 / 111

Chapter 11 The Origins and Context of J.A. Luckhoo's Idea of an Indian Colony in British Guiana / 120

Chapter 12 The First Nunan-Luckhoo Deputation to India, 1919–20, and the Response of the Nationalists / 135

Chapter 13 The Pillai-Tivary/Keatinge Deputation to British Guiana, 1922 / 145

Chapter 14 The Second Nunan-Luckhoo Deputation to India, 1923–24 / 153

Chapter 15 The Ruimveldt Shootings (1924): The Colonisation Scheme and African-Indian Relations / 163

Chapter 16 Maharaj Singh's Deputation to British Guiana (1925) and the Death of the Colonisation Scheme, 1925–28 / 174

Mother India's Shadow Over El Dorado

Chapter 17 Governor Guggisberg's Idea of Colonisation, Andrews's Sojourn and 'Racial Balance' in British Guiana, 1928–29 / 188

Part 4: Indians and Constitutional Change, 1916–28

Chapter 18 Racism, the Ruse of Development and Constitutional Change, 1916–24 / 207

Chapter 19 Governor Thomson, Race and a New Initiative to Suspend the Constitution, 1925 / 222

Chapter 20 Indians and the Suspension of the Constitution, 1926–28 / 235

Part 5: Indian Nationalism and Indo-Guyanese Identity, 1920–29

Chapter 21 Gandhi and Indo-Guyanese Pride in Mother India in the 1920s / 257

Chapter 22 India's Emissaries and Indian Identity in British Guiana – The Early 1920s / 269

Chapter 23 The Context and the Impact of Mother India's Luminaries in British Guiana: Jaimini and Andrews, 1929 / 278

Part 6: The Anatomy of an Awakening: Intellectual Images of India in Indo-Guyanese Thought in the 1930s

Chapter 24 Peter Ruhomon and Indian Identity in British Guiana / 299

Chapter 25 Bifurcated Nationalism: African and Indian Identities in the 1930s / 325

Chapter 26 J.I. Ramphal ('Akbar Shah') and the Education of Indian Girls, 1932–33 / 351

Chapter 27 J.I. Ramphal and His Encounters with J.B. Cropper: The Making of His Rebellious Temperament / 379

Chapter 28 J.I. Ramphal ('Akbar Shah' / 'Lala Lajpat') and the Sustaining Vision of Mother India, 1931–37 / 391

Part 7: In the Shadow of the Motherland: Indo-Guyanese Political Imagination, 1936–39

Chapter 29 Indian Opinion and Indo-Guyanese Identity on the Eve of Their Centenary, 1936–38 / 423

Chapter 30 Mother India's Achievements and the Making of the Indo-Guyanese, 1936–37 / 447

Chapter 31 The Indian Centenary in British Guiana and the Location of Indo-Guyanese, 1938–39 / 458

Conclusion

Chapter 32 The Legacy of an Illusion: El Dorado and the Race Question at the End of the 1930s / 475

Bibliography / 503

Index / 511