Contents

Acknowledgments  xiii

Introduction  Latin American Studies and the Comparative Study of Democracy  1

What Do Latin Americans Tell Pollsters About Democracy?  3
What Defines Latin America as a Geographic Area?  6
What Method Should We Use to Understand the Region?  7
Preview of the Chapters  10
An Invitation  14

PART I  COMPARATIVE POLITICAL THEORY AND LATIN AMERICAN AREA STUDIES  17

Chapter 1  Conceptions of Democracy  19

Liberal Democracy in the Real World of Latin America  19
  Are There Other Kinds of Democracy?  21
  Latin America and the “Third Wave” of Liberal Democracy  23

Liberalism, Pluralism, and Polyarchy  28
  How Comparativists Apply Polyarchy to the Study of Latin America  31
  Democracy Without People?  36

Popular Democracy  37

Corporatism: A Latin American Way of Politics?  39

Communism: Fidel Castro Claims Cuba Is Democratic  43

Not Taking Democracy for Granted  45

Chapter 2  Inequality, Political Culture, and Popular Sovereignty  47

Strong Presidents, Personalism, and “Toy Democracies” (?)  48

Clientelism and Corruption in the Political Culture  50

Inequality, Poverty, and Democracy  53
  Race and Ethnic Inequality  56
  Gender and Exclusion  59

Class, Culture, and Politics  62
PART II  HISTORY: COLONIAL LEGACIES, MASS POLITICS, AND DEMOCRACY  65

Chapter 3  Democratic and Autocratic Threads in Latin American History  67

Indigenous Peoples and the Pre-Columbian Legacy  69
Indigenous Politics Today: Bolivia's Evo Morales and Mexico's Zapatistas  75

The Colonial Era  79
Why Did the Conquistadors Succeed? Why Does It Matter Today?  82
Afro-Latin America: Roots and Slavery  85
Some Colonial Patterns That Persist Today  87

National Identity in Latin America  89
Independence or Neocolonialism—or Both?  91

Chapter 4  Political Without Economic Independence  93

The Path to Independence in Spanish America  94
Brazil's Divergent Path to Independence  98

Failed States, New Nations  100

Rebuilding States, Modernization  103
Conservatives, Liberals, and Modernization  104
Commodity Booms and Busts—New Exports, New Elites  105
Mexico: From Failed State to Modernizing Dictatorship  106
Paraguay's Unsuccessful Break With the Pattern  107

Foreign Influences and Domestic Reactions  109

Stirrings of Change at the Dawn of a New Century  112
Independence—Did It Make a Difference?  113

PART III  DEVELOPMENT AND MASS POLITICS IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY  117

Chapter 5  Development and Dependency: Theory and Practice in Latin America  119

Contending Approaches to Development  120
Modernization Theory  122
Dependency Theory and Latin America's Structuralists  126
Import Substitution  128
Marxism's Influence in Latin America and Development Theory  131
Institutionalism  134
Chapter 8  State and Market in Latin America  207

From Democracy to Military Rule and Back Again  208
  New Economic Policies After ISI  208

The "Lost Decade" of the 1980s and the Debt Crisis  210
  How the Debt Crisis Started  210
  Sovereignty, Democracy, and Structural Adjustment  214

Population Explosion of the Cities  217

The Decline of Economic Nationalism  220

Adjusting to the Global Market: Three Variations  223
  The Chilean Neoliberal "Success Story"  223
  Brazil: The Business-Friendly State  224
  Cuba: Escaping the Debt Crisis and Not Escaping Debt or Crisis  226

Did Latin Americans Democratically Choose Neoliberalism?  228

Chapter 9  Transitions and "Pacted" Democracies in Brazil and the Southern Cone  230

Types of Transition, Democracy, and "Regime Change"  231

Negotiating Democratic Transitions: Compromise and Risk  234

Cases of Transition in the Southern Cone and Brazil  236
  Chile's Controlled Transition  237
  Argentina's Transition and National Humiliation  244
  Brazil's Gradual Transition  250
  Human Rights in Times of Transition: The Case of Uruguay  255

Forbidden to Forget  257

Chapter 10  Transitions From Party-Dominant Regimes in Mexico and Venezuela  259

Mexico's Transition to Multiparty Politics  260

Venezuela's Transition From Pacted Democracy to Radical Populism  269

Conclusions Drawn From Six Cases of Transition  276

PART V  REVOLUTION AND DEMOCRACY  281

Chapter 11  Nationalism and Revolution in Mexico and Cuba  283

The Mexican Revolution  285
  Origins: Modernization for the Few  286
  The Revolutionary Civil War  288
  Did the Mexican Revolution Make a Difference?  290
  Chiapas, the Zapatistas, and Revolutionary Revival  292
Guatemala's Frustrated Revolution: United Fruit, the CIA, and the 1954 Coup 294

The Cuban Revolution 296
- Origins: Nationalism and Neocolonialism 296
- The Rise of Fidel Castro and the Revolution of 1959 299
- Radicalization of the Cuban Revolution 304
- Nationalism and Communism: The Struggle for the Legacy of José Martí 305
- Successes and Failures: Taking Stock of Cuba's Revolution 307
- Human Rights, One-Party Rule, and Cuba's Uncertain Future 309

Relevance of Revolution 311

Chapter 12 Democracy in Times of Revolution 313

Ideology and Revolution in Latin America 314
- Communism and Revolution in Latin America 314
- The Latin American Left Divides Over Revolutionary Strategy 318
- Liberation Theology—Religion in Revolution and Revolution in Religion 319

The Social Question and Revolution in Central America 322

The Nicaraguan Revolution 325

El Salvador's Near Revolution 328

Genocide and Resurgent Revolution in Guatemala 330

Violence, Civil Society, and Revolution 331
- Terrorism and Peru's Sendero Luminoso 332
- Colombia's Tragic Civil War 334

Democracy and Revolution 337

PART VI MOVEMENTS, CIVIL SOCIETY, AND PARTIES 339

Chapter 13 Social Class and Politics in Latin America 341

The Social Class System 342

Class-Based Organizations and Movements 347
- Business Interests: Merchants, Bankers, Landowners, and Industrialists 347
- Drug Lords—A New Business Sector 348
- Working Class Movements and Unions 351
- The Urban Poor and Neighborhood Associations 356
- Neighborhood Organizations and Populist Politics 357
- Peasants, Rural Movements, and Landlords 360
- The Evolving Rural Economy 361

Class- and Nonclass-Based Movements 363
Chapter 14  "New" Social Movements, New Politics?  365

Movements, Groups, and Political Opportunities  367

New Social Movements and Their Issues  370
  Human Rights Groups  370
  Women’s Movements  372
  Racial and Ethnic Movements  373
    Afro-Descendant Movements in Brazil and the Caribbean  374
    Indigenous Movements  375

Social Movements and Global Networking  379

Social Movements and the Pink Tide  382

Movements and Civil Society  383

Chapter 15  Parties and Electoral Politics  387

Party Systems  388

Types of Parties in Latin America  389
  Dinosaurs: Traditional and Populist Parties  389
  Strange Bedfellows and the Costa Rican Exception  394

New Social Movements and Parties: An Uneasy Relationship  396
  Mexico’s PRD  396
  Brazilian Workers Party  397
  Why Do Movement Parties Often Disappoint Movements?  399

Parties Growing Out of Armed Struggles  401
  The PCC: A Movement Party?  403

Personalist Parties and the New Caudilloism  404
  Neopopulism and Neoliberals  405

New Conservative Parties  406
  Neopopulism on the Left  407

Technopols, Media, and Think-Tanks  409

What Makes an Election Fair?  412

Shall We Party?  416

PART VII  RIGHTS, INSTITUTIONS, AND LAW:
  THE FORMAL RULES OF THE GAME  419

Chapter 16  Institutions, Constitutions, and Governance  421

Constitutions and the Search for Democratic Stability  423

Presidentialism and “Impeachment of the Street”  424
Democratic Governance 426

New Institutionalism and Constitutional Design 429
  Executive–Legislative Relationships 429
  Consequences of Reform 431
  Parties, Presidents, and Congress 436
    Argentina 436
    Chile 437
    Brazil 440

Fair Elections and Democratic Legitimacy 442

Institutions and Innovation 445

Conclusion: Institutions Matter 448

Chapter 17 Corruption, Human Rights, and the Rule of Law 451

Law and Order in Latin America 452
  Crime and Justice 452
  Corruption 456

Human Rights and the Rule of Law 460
  Human Rights and State Violence 462
  Drug Wars and the "War on Terrorism" 464
  Rating Human Rights Records 468
    Freedom House 468
    Rating Cuba 470

Progress on Law and Rights? 472

PART VIII GLOBALIZATION AND THE ROLE OF THE UNITED STATES 475

Chapter 18 Democracy in Times of Globalization 477

The Obsolescent Nation-State? 479

Economic Globalization and Latin America 481
  Manufacturing, Maquilas, and the Global Assembly Line 483
  Globalizing Agribusiness and Mining 486
  Tourism 488

Trade Agreements and Regional Economic Blocs 490
  North American Free Trade Agreement 491
  Debt and Resistance in Argentina 496
  An Alternative Economic Integration Scheme 498

Latin America Meets the World: Separately or United? 501

Transnational Issues and Global Citizenship 503