THE GOVERNANCE OF PROBLEMS

Puzzling, powering, participation

Robert Hoppe

SUB Hamburg

A/561785
List of boxes, figures and tables  vii
About the author  viii
Preface  ix

one
A problem-processing perspective on governance  1
Governance of problems  1
Puzzling and powering  7
Governance as a quest for political participation and institutional alignment  10
Implications for policy analysis  15
Plan of the book  19

two
The governance of problems: a map  23
Introduction  23
Problem structuring and responsive governance  23
Problems around government  31
Need for a problem-structuring approach  42
A conceptual model of the governance of problems  46
Mapping the governance of problems  50

three
Analysing policy problems: a problem-structuring approach  59
Introduction  59
The politics of meaning  59
The social and political construction of public problems  66
On structuring unstructured problems  76

four
Cultures of public policy problems  91
Introduction  91
Cultural roots of policy problem structuring  92
What is grid-group cultural theory?  94
Towards a systematic culturalist theory of problem structuring  100
Conclusions  115

five
Problem types and types of policy politics  121
Introduction  121
From policy decision making in and between organisations, to networks  123
Policy making in and through networks  130
Summary  142
The governance of problems

six

Problem-structuring dynamics and meta-governance
Introduction 145
Structuring the policy problem: prenatal screening in the Netherlands (1990-2007) 146
Breakdown of a structured problem: soil pollution in the Volgermeer Polder (1980-81) 150
From rule to learning, on to bargaining ... and back? Drug policy in Swiss cities (1980s-90s) 154
From unstructured problem to accommodation: protecting the Wadden Sea area's ecological values (1965-80) 158
Problem structuring, change in policy politics, and meta-governance 162

seven

Making policy analysis doable and reflexive
Introduction 167
Still speaking truth to power? 167
Epistemology: from instrumental to fallibilist-pragmatist rationality 171
Policy analysis: from analycentrism to the argumentative turn 173
Towards pragmatic and reflexive policy analysis 184

eight

The plural democracies of problems: a meta-theory
Introduction 195
Democracy, frame shifts and network management 196
Democracies of problems 198
A meta-theory of democratic practices 211

nine

Public engagement and deliberative designs
Introduction 215
Wrong-problem problems 215
Shifts in governance: meta-governance 220
Perplexities of democratic experiments in problem structuring 232

ten

Responsible and hopeful governance of problems
Introduction 243
Propositions on the governance of problems 243
Asymmetry and polarity between puzzling and powering 250
Conditions for a responsible and hopeful governance of problems 259

Bibliography 263
Index 293