Perfecting Justice in Rawls, Habermas and Honneth
A Deconstructive Perspective

Miriam Bankovsky

Continuum Studies in Political Philosophy
Contents

Acknowledgements vi

1. Perfecting Justice: An Art of the Im/ Possible 1

Part One: Justice as Fairness: A Project to Pursue
2. Rawls and the Possibility of ‘Ideal Theory’ 41
3. Rawls and the ‘Undecidability’ of the Original Position Procedure 72

Part Two: Rational Consensus: Open to Contestation in Principle
4. Habermas and the Possibility of Popular Sovereignty 101
5. Habermas and the Perfectibility of Deliberative Outcomes 127

Part Three: Perfecting Recognition Relations
6. Honneth and the Possibility of Mutual Recognition 151
7. Honneth and Moral Progress in the Quality of Recognition Relations 178
8. Im/Possibility and the Cultivation of Deconstructive Civic Attitudes 203

Notes 221

References 227

Index 241