Experiencing the French Revolution

Edited by
DAVID ANDRESS

VOLTAIRE FOUNDATION
OXFORD
Contents

List of tables, illustrations and chapter appendices vii

DAVID ANDRESS, Introduction: Revolutionary historiography, adrift or at large? The paradigmatic quest versus the exploration of experience 1

I. Experiencing Revolutionary transitions 17

SIMON BURROWS, French banned books in international perspective, 1770-1789 19

CHARLES WALTON, Between trust and terror: patriotic giving in Revolutionary France 47

PETER MCPHEE, Robespierre and violence 69

METTE HARDER, Reacting to Revolution - the political career(s) of J.-L. Tallien 87

IAN GERMANI, 'The most striking and the most terrible examples': the experience of military justice in the armies of the French Revolution 113

II. Experiences at the heart of the Terror 135

ALEX FAIRFAX-CHOLMELEY, Defence, collaboration, counter-attack: the role and exploitation of the printed word by victims of the Terror, 1793-1794 137

JONATHAN SMYTH, Public experience of the Revolution: the national reaction to the proclamation of the Fête de l’Etre suprême 155

RONEN STEINBERG, Trauma before trauma: imagining the effects of the Terror in post-Revolutionary France 177

MARISA LINTON, The stuff of nightmares: plots, assassinations and duplicity in the mental world of the Jacobin leaders, 1793-1794 201

III. Revolutionary experiences beyond France 219

BRECHT DESEUR, 'Rappelez-leur, pour mieux les persuader': French political legitimization and historical discourse in Belgium (1792-1799) 221
Contents

FFION JONES, 'The silly expressions of French revolution...': the experience of the Dissenting community in south-west Wales, 1797 245
J. WARD REGAN, Thomas Paine: life during wartime 263

Summaries 285
Bibliography 291
Index 321