American Foreign Policy and Political Ambition

Second Edition

James Lee Ray
Vanderbilt University

SAGE |
CQPRESS

Los Angeles | London | New Delhi
Singapore | Washington DC
PART I Laying the Foundation: The Importance, the History, and Competing Theories of American Foreign Policy 1

1 The Impacts of American Foreign Policy 2
   Key Concepts 11

2 Analyzing Modern American Foreign Policy: Competing Approaches 12
   Realism: The Predominant Theory 15
   Liberalism: The Main Alternative 19
   Neoconservativism: A Hybrid? 21
   Constructivism: A New Approach 23
   Radical and Traditional Leftist Approaches 26
   Modern, Antiestablishment Approaches 28
   Rational Political Ambition Theory 29
   Conclusion 35
   Key Concepts 36
   Lessons Learned 36

3 The Past as Prologue: American Foreign Policy from the American Revolution through World War II 38
   The Proclamation of the Monroe Doctrine 42
   U.S. Expansion in the Nineteenth Century 43
      The Louisiana Purchase 43
      The Acquisition of Florida 44
      Taking over Texas 44
      The Acquisition of the Oregon Territory 46
   The Foreign Politics of the Civil War 46
   Further Expansion 48
   The Differing Fates of North and South America 49
   Foreign Policy Challenges in the First Half of the Twentieth Century 53
   Conclusion 58
   Key Concepts 59
   Lessons Learned 59
4 The Cold War 60
  Strains in the World War II Coalition 63
  Was the Cold War “Symmetrical?” 66
    Or Was It Mostly the Fault of the United States? 66
    Or Was the Soviet Union Mostly at Fault? 67
    Or Was the Structure of the Postwar International System to Blame? 68
  Cold War Milestones 71
  The Korean War 72
  The War in Vietnam 74
  Why Did the Cold War End? 82
    Did Containment End the Cold War? 84
    Did Reagan’s Rollback Policies End the Cold War? 85
    A Critique of Reagan’s Rollback Policies 89
  Conclusion 90
  Key Concepts 91
  Lessons Learned 92

PART II Foreign Policy Processes—Inside and Outside the Government 93

5 The President and Congress 94
  The President and American Foreign Policy 95
    President Obama and the War Powers Resolution 97
    The President’s Constitutional Foreign Policy Role 97
    Is the President Too Powerful? 98
  Congress and American Foreign Policy 102
    Congress and the Authorization of Military Action 103
    Congress and Treaty Ratification 105
    Congress and International Trade 106
  Should Politics Stop at the Water’s Edge? 109
  Conclusion 114
  Key Concepts 116
  Lessons Learned 116

6 Government Agencies, Economic Issues, and Foreign Policy 118
  The Department of State 119
  The National Security Council: A Pseudo-State Department? 126
  The Department of Defense 129
  The Intelligence Community 133
  Dealing with Economic Issues 139
    The Origins of the Contemporary Global Economic System 140
    The Evolution of the Bretton Woods System 144
7 The Impact of Extragovernmental Factors on American Foreign Policy: Political Parties, Interest Groups, the Mass Media, and Public Opinion 152

Interest Groups and Foreign Policy 153
  Business Interests 153
  Ethnic Groups, NGOs, and Intellectuals 158
  Political Parties 160

Mass Communications, Media, and Foreign Policy 163
  Creating Public Opinion 164
  The CNN Effect 167

Public Opinion: Should It Have an Impact on Foreign Policy? 169
What Does the Public Want? 171

Public Opinion on U.S. Military Actions 173
  The Rally Round the Flag Effect 175
  The Impact of Anticipated Public Reactions 177

Conclusion 181
Key Concepts 181
Lessons Learned 182

PART III U.S. Foreign Policy in Regional Contexts 183

8 The United States and Europe: A Parting of the Ways? 184

The Early Cold War Years 186
The Beginnings of European Integration: The Failure of the European Defense Force 187

Another Attempt: Launching European Economic Integration 188
  Early Tensions between France and the United States 189
  The 1970s: A Time of Troubles for the European Community? 191

The Rebirth of the Cold War 191
The End of the Cold War in Europe 192
The Post–Cold War Era 194
  Yugoslavia in World War II and Its Aftermath 195
  Dissolution after Tito 197