Obama and the World
New directions in US foreign policy

Second edition

Edited by Inderjeet Parmar, Linda B. Miller, and Mark Ledwidge

Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK
Contents

List of figures xi
List of tables xii
List of contributors xiii
Introduction xix

PART 1

Theories 1

1 Realism and US foreign policy 3
   ADAM QUINN

2 Constructivism, US foreign policy, and counterterrorism 15
   RICHARD JACKSON AND MATT MCDONALD

3 Neoconservatism in the age of Obama 29
   ROBERT SINGH

4 Obama, liberalism, and US foreign policy 41
   TIMOTHY J. LYNCH

5 Marxism and US foreign policy 53
   DOUG STOKES AND DAVID MAHER

6 Barack Obama: cosmopolitanism, identity politics, and the decline of Euro-centrism 67
   MARK LEDWIDGE

7 Hegemonic transition and US foreign policy 80
   NICK KITCHEN
PART 2
Non-state actors

8 Parties, polarization, and US foreign policy
STEVEN HURST

9 Changing minds, changing course: Obama, think tanks, and American foreign policy
DONALD E. ABELSON

10 Conservative evangelicals, the Tea Party, and US foreign policy
LEE MARSDEN

11 American foreign policy during the Obama administration: insights from the public
JAMES M. MCCORMICK

12 Corporate elite networks and US foreign policy: the revolving door and the open door under Obama
BASTIAAN VAN APELDOORN AND NANA DE GRAAFF

PART 3
New problems, paradigms, and policies

13 The Obama administration’s policy toward Africa
GEORGE KLAY KIEH, JR

14 The offensive turn: US intelligence and the ‘war on terror’
TREVOR MCCRISKEN AND MARK PHYTHIAN

15 Transatlantic relations and US foreign policy
DAVID HASTINGS DUNN AND BENJAMIN ZALA

16 The US ‘pivot’ to the Asia Pacific
OLIVER TURNER

17 The United States and the Arab spring: now and then in the Middle East
LINDA B. MILLER

18 Obama, Wikileaks, and American power
INDERJEET PARMAR
19 The United States and the UN: return to the fold?
CRAIG N. MURPHY

PART 4
A view from practitioners

20 American power, patterns of rise and decline
KETAN PATEL AND CHRISTIAN HANSMeyer

21 Presidents' agenda: the decisions that will shape US–China relations
KETAN PATEL AND CHRISTIAN HANSMeyer

Afterword: Securing freedom: Obama, the NSA, and US foreign policy
ANDREW HAMMOND AND RICHARD J. ALDRICH

Index